THE ROAD FROM DEATH VALLEY TO PARADISE IS JUST 17 MILES LONG.

The first ever community where you'll find both a Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf Course (opened in 2002) and an Arnold Palmer Premier Golf Complex (construction set to begin in 2007).

Your odometer tells you its only 17 miles from Death Valley to your home at The Reserve. But your heart and soul tell you this perfect lakeside retreat is a million miles away. That's because, at The Reserve, we've created an extraordinary community with a spectacular array of on-site amenities for the entire family.

And while the pleasures of living — and playing — on the lake are endless, the opportunity is limited. Call us after the game to reserve your place in this one-of-a-kind year round retreat. And experience the charms of mountain lake living today.

Look no further. The perfect lake retreat is right next door.

Come See How it Lives.

There's no better way to experience The Reserve lifestyle, than living it. Our charming Guest House has private suites available for our sales guests. Ask for details when you call.

What's Inside

Chansi Stuckey 6,7

Senior Spotlight

This Tiger graduate is determined to work hard and be back in the lineup shortly, providing Clemson with spectacular catches and game-changing performances. When he does, he will once again show the work ethic that would make even a Hall of Fame coach like Vince Lombardi smile.

Brandon Cannon 9

Senior Spotlight

True athletes share a passion for the game, a commitment to success, and lessons to last a lifetime. This Tiger not only exhibits these aspects on the field, but he also shows these qualities off the field. He is a loving husband, a proud father, and an overall good character and role model to the Tiger football family.

Donnell Clark 12,13

Senior Spotlight

Hard times coupled with injuries unfortunately seem to happen every year in football programs across the country. This Tiger can tell you about both. While he has suffered injuries during his football career, including a broken hand and ankle injury, the most excruciating one was his torn ACL injury suffered last year.

Daniel Moskos 125

Team USA Baseball Trip to Cuba

This Tiger was a part of a U.S. squad that enjoyed tremendous success at the highest level, perhaps the only U.S. squad to gain its sport's top prize. He was a key component for the Team USA baseball squad that earned gold medal honors at the World Championship in Havana, Cuba this past summer.

Tony Elliott 127

Former Tiger Wideout

The former Tiger wideout walked on to the football team in 1999. He made a name for himself on the field, contributing to Clemson's 9-4 season in 2003. He also made impressions off the field as a team leader. Now, he is an assistant coach at S.C. State. Big things are in store for this former Tiger.

On the Cover

Featured on the cover of today's game program are three fifth-year seniors from the state of Georgia, including Brandon Cannon (DE), Donnell Clark (DT), and Chansi Stuckey (WR). Cannon and Clark are experienced reserves on the defensive line, and Stuckey is one of the best wideouts in Clemson history.

Today's Game

Clemson vs. Georgia Tech

ACC's Most Competitive Series

The Clemson-Georgia Tech series has been the most competitive series in the ACC over the last 10 years. Nine of the last 10 games have been decided by five points or less, including a six-game streak between 1996-01 in which every game was decided by exactly three points. That might be a first in college football history. We are not talking by three points or less, but exactly three points.

Georgia Tech was victorious 10-9 in Atlanta last year in the lowest-scoring game in the series in 14 years. That was Clemson's only loss over the last seven games of the season. Clemson cut the margin to 10-9 on Jad Dean's third field goal of the game with 5:36 left, but the Tigers were hurt by a holding penalty on their last possession.

Georgia Tech has a 45-23-2 lead in the series dating to a 23-0 Tiger win in Augusta, GA in 1898, just the 11th game in Clemson football history. In fact, Clemson won the first four games of the series, including games in 1902 and 1903 when John Heisman was at the helm. Clemson defeated Georgia Tech in Atlanta 73-0 in 1903 with Heisman as head coach as well.

Georgia Tech has won two in a row in the series, including the last meeting at Clemson in 2004. The Yellow Jackets scored two touchdowns in the last 1:50 to win 28-24. Clemson had taken a 24-14 lead with 3:18 left on a 54-yard touchdown run by Kyle Browning. The teams combined for 35 points in the fourth quarter after scoring a combined 17 points in the first three quarters.

Clemson-Georgia Tech Series Highlights

- The Tigers have an 8-5 advantage in games at Clemson, but Georgia Tech leads 40-12-2 in games played in Atlanta. Every game between the two teams between 1907-74 was played in Atlanta. Clemson's only wins in those 36 meetings came in 1907, 1936, 1945, and 1969. The 1969 victory came in Frank Howard's final season as head coach.
- The first time Georgia Tech played in Clemson's stadium was 1974, a 21-17 Tiger victory. Clemson won that game on a three-yard touchdown pass from current Virginia Tech Offensive Coordinator Mike O'Cain to All-America tight end Bennie Cunningham with 8:26 left.

- Clemson has a 12-11 advantage in the series, regardless of site, since Georgia Tech joined the ACC in 1983. The Yellow Jackets actually joined during the 1979-80 academic year, but did not compete for the football championship until 1983.

- One of the most unusual statistical occurrences in Tiger history took place during Clemson's 33-12 win over Georgia Tech in 1987 at Memorial Stadium. Clemson entered the game with a streak of 999 consecutive combined punt returns and kickoff returns without a score dating to 1970. Then on the 1,000th return, Donnell Woolford raced 78 yards on a punt return for a touchdown. Later in the game, Joe Henderson returned a kickoff 95 yards for a score. It is the only game in history that Clemson returned a punt for a touchdown and a kickoff for a touchdown in the same game.

- Since Tommy Bowden has been the head coach, the Clemson-Georgia Tech games have been high scoring with the exception of last year's game. The point total for the seven games is 213-180 in favor of the Tigers, giving Clemson a 30-26 average victory during the time. But, Georgia Tech has the lead 4-3 in the won-loss column.

- Clemson won three games in a row from 2001-03, including the 2003 game in Atlanta by a 39-3 score. That was Clemson's largest margin of victory in the series since a 73-0 Tiger win in Atlanta in 1903 when John Heisman was the Clemson coach. It is the only game in the series since 1995 that has not been decided by five points or less.

- Woodrow Dantzler had one of the best all-around games of his career with 164 yards rushing and 254 yards passing in the Clemson victory in 2001. He threw for two scores and ran for two, including a 38-yard "Hail Mary Run" on the last play of the first half to cut Georgia Tech's lead to 19-14 at intermission. His 63-yard scoring pass to J.J. McKelvey on fourth down with 1:58 left put Clemson ahead by three, but Georgia Tech tied the score with a 20-yard field goal with just six seconds left. Dantzler's "walk-off" six-yard touchdown in overtime gave Clemson the win.

- Clemson has had just two games in its history in which both teams scored in the 40s. They have both taken place at Georgia Tech under Tommy Bowden. Georgia Tech won 45-42 in 1999, and Clemson won 47-44 in overtime in 2001 in Atlanta.

Calvin Johnson Among Best in the Nation

Clemson will have its hands full on defense when Georgia Tech comes to Memorial Stadium tonight. The Yellow Jackets have one of the finest players in the nation regardless of position in wide receiver Calvin Johnson. The junior has 35 receptions for 559 yards and eight touchdowns so far this season, best in the ACC in three areas, and among the nation's best in all three areas. Johnson averages 93.2 yards per game receiving, nearly 40 yards per game ahead of his nearest competitor.

Not on the ACC stats is Clemson receiver Chansi Stuckey, who has 25 catches for 331 yards. Stuckey, who joined Johnson as a First-Team All-ACC wideout in 2005, suffered a broken foot in practice on October 3, and had surgery to repair the foot on his birthday (October 4). He has missed two games and does not have enough games played to qualify for the stats. We could have seen the top two receivers in the ACC on the field today if Stuckey had not been injured.

Johnson has faced Clemson's best on defense the last two years. As a freshman in 2004, he led Georgia Tech to a 28-24 win in Death Valley when he caught eight passes for 127 yards and three touchdowns. It was just his second career game, so it certainly brought him into the national limelight. He accomplished those stats going head-to-head with Tiger cornerback Justin Miller, a second-round pick who is now in the NFL with the New York Jets.

Last year, Johnson again helped the Yellow Jackets to a thrilling victory over the Tigers when he caught four balls for 46 yards, but he was held out of the endzone by Clemson cornerback Tye Hill, who went on to be a first-round draft pick by the Saint Louis Rams.

Johnson is the most productive player on a balanced Georgia Tech offense this year. The Yellow Jackets have an outstanding running back in Oklahoma transfer Tashard Choice, who averages 83.7 yards per game on the ground and has scored six touchdowns. Quarterback Reggie Ball has already led Georgia Tech to two wins over Clemson in his career. He has had an outstanding senior year with 155 passing yards per game. But, he is an outstanding runner, and averages 207 yards per game of total offense, one of just two ACC quarterbacks over the 200-yard mark so far this year.

Georgia Tech has been strong on defense this year, allowing just 72.5 rushing yards per game, third-best in the ACC and among the top 15 in the nation. Linebacker Philip Wheeler is second in the ACC to Gaines Adams in sacks, and is second in tackles for loss. KaMichael Hall is the top tackler with 42 through the first six games.

The Clemson-Georgia Tech series has been one of the most competitive series in the nation in recent years. Nine of the last 10 meetings have been decided by five points or less.

Today's Game

Clemson vs. Georgia Tech

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

Gaines Adams Ties Record

Clemson certainly has an All-America candidate of its own in bandit end Gaines Adams. Adams has recorded at least one sack in five consecutive games, tying the school record for consecutive games with at least one sack. The streak started when he had 2.5 sacks at Florida State in the third game of the year, and it includes the Wake Forest game where he had a pair of sacks. He played just 12 snaps against Temple on October 12, but did record a sack to advance the streak to five games. Adams has 7.5 sacks for the season to lead the ACC.

Adams is tied with Chester McGlockton, Keith Adams (no relation), and Leroy Hill for the consecutive games with a sack record. McGlockton did it from 1989-90, Adams accomplished the feat in 1999, and Hill did it in 2004. McGlockton was a four-time Pro Bowl selection, Adams is currently in the NFL with Miami, and Hill is a starting linebacker with Seattle who started in the Super Bowl last season.

Gaines Adams moved into a tie for third place in school history with the sack against Temple. He moved ahead of Brentson Buckner, who ironically played for the Carolina Panthers in the same Bank of America Stadium where Clemson's game against the Owls was played. So, Adams moved ahead of the former Tiger on a field Buckner was very familiar with. In fact, Buckner was at the game.

Adams is now tied for third in Tiger history with 23 career sacks, trailing only the Perry Brothers. Michael Dean had 28 between 1984-87, and William had 27 between 1981-84. Adams is currently tied with Adrian Dingle and Keith Adams with 23.

Clemson Career Sack Leaders

| Rk | Player, Pos. | Years | Sacks |
|----|------------------------|---------|-------|
| 1. | Michael Dean Perry, DT | 1984-87 | 28 |
| 2. | William Perry, MG | 1981-84 | 27 |
| 3. | Gaines Adams, DE | 2003-06 | 23 |
| | Adrian Dingle, DE | 1995-98 | 23 |
| | Keith Adams, LB | 1998-00 | 23 |
| 6. | Brentson Buckner, DT | 1990-93 | 22 |
| | Bryant McNeal, DE | 1999-02 | 22 |
| 8. | Chester McGlockton, DT | 1989-91 | 20.5 |
| 9. | Levon Kirkland, OLB | 1988-91 | 19 |
| | Wayne Simmons, OLB | 1989-92 | 19 |

James Davis, C.J. Spiller a Strong Combination

Clemson running backs James Davis and C.J. Spiller have been a strong running back combination for the Tigers this year, especially in recent weeks. Over the last three weeks, they have combined to average 226 yards per game on the ground. As a result, Clemson is averaging 250.6 yards per game rushing in 2006.

For the year, Davis has averaged 106.4 yards per game, best in the ACC. Davis has also scored 14 rushing touchdowns to lead the ACC and tie for the national lead, and has a pair of 100-yard rushing games. Spiller is at 58.1 rushing yards per game, 10th-best in the ACC. Spiller had back-to-back 100-yard games when he had 127 against Louisiana Tech and 104 in just nine carries at Wake Forest.

For the year, Davis and Spiller have combined to average 164.6 yards per game (1,152 yards in seven games). They already have a combined 20 touchdowns, and have averaged 6.4 yards per rush.

If the season ended today, their 164.6 yards per game would be the fourth-best, two-person combination in Tiger history, and the third-best for a running back combination. The record is 172.4 by Gaines Adams' 23 career sacks are tied for third-most in school history. He is also a major reason the Tigers are in the top 10 in the nation in most defensive stat categories.

Raymond Priester and Emory Smith in 1995. Woodrow Dantzler and Travis Zachery averaged 171.3 yards per game in 2000, but Dantzler was a quarterback and Zachery a running back.

Twenty years ago, Clemson had a top running back duo in Terrence Flagler and Kenny Flowers. Flagler was a first-round draft pick and first-team All-American in 1986. Flowers was injured part of that season, but still had nearly 600 yards. That duo combined for 154.4 yards per game and a 5.9 average per carry. Davis and Spiller are currently at 6.4 yards per carry, ahead of that pace and at a record pace overall for two players on the same team.

The record for combined touchdowns by a running back duo is 21 set by Cliff Austin and Chuck McSwain in 1982. Davis and Spiller need just two more to break that record. The mark for any two players on the same team is 26 by Dantzler and Zachery in 2000.

Will Proctor Productive as Starter

Because he had started just one game in his career entering this season, some might have wondered how productive Will Proctor would be as Clemson's starting quarterback in 2006. So far, he has answered the questions with a passing efficiency of 151.2 that leads the ACC, and a 63.6-percent completion mark.

In fact, Proctor has better numbers than his predecessor Charlie Whitehurst had last year in terms of yards per attempt, yards per completion, passing efficiency, and touchdown/interception ratio. That is pretty good company, because Whitehurst is now in the NFL with the San Diego Chargers, and is the holder of 46 school records.

Based on the NCAA minimum standard of 15 attempts per game, Proctor's 151.2 passing efficiency is ahead of the Clemson record pace of 146.0 by Mike Eppley in 1983. Eppley was third in the nation in passing efficiency that year in leading Clemson to a 9-1-1 record. That is the highest national finish by a Tiger in history.

Clemson has been very productive under Proctor. Dating to his one start last year against Duke, the Tigers have a 7-1 record with the native of Winter Park, FL as the starting quarterback. Proctor is the first Tiger quarterback to win at least seven of his first eight games as the starter since the 1950-51 era. Billy Hair was 8-0 in his first eight games as a starter over the last five games of 1950 and the first three games of 1951.

Clemson has been very productive under Proctor in his eight games as a starter. Including that start against Duke last year, Clemson has averaged 457.9 yards of total offense per game and 44.5 points per game with Proctor manning the controls. The Tigers have also averaged 5.4 touchdowns per game and gained 6.9 yards per play.

Clemson Offensive Production Under Proctor

| Category | Total | Per Game |
|------------------|-------|----------|
| W-L | 7-1 | |
| Points | 356 | 44.5 |
| Total Touchdowns | 43 | 5.38 |
| Total Offense | 3,663 | 457.9 |
| Passing Offense | 1,675 | 209.4 |
| Rushing Offense | 1,988 | 248.5 |

Clemson Has a +225-Yard Differential

Clemson is in the top 10 in the nation in both total offense and total defense. Clemson has outgained the opposition by 225 yards per game so far this year. If the season ended today, that would be a record for yardage differential in a season by nearly 60 yards per game. The existing record for a complete season is +165.2 yards per game set by the 1978 Tiger team that finished the year #6 in the final polls with an 11-1 record.

The last Clemson team to outgain the opposition by at least 100 yards per game was the 1991 team that won the ACC title. That team had 403 yards of total offense per game and gave up just 272.6 for a +130.4 margin. The best total offense margin under Tommy Bowden took place in 2000, when Clemson had a total offense margin of 90 yards per game.

Clemson's Best Yardage Differential

| Rk | Year | Offense | Defense | Margin |
|-----|------|---------|---------|--------|
| 1. | 2006 | 459.0 | 234.0 | +225.0 |

Baseline to Goal Line

The Clemson basketball program will hold "Baseline to Goal Line," a combination basketball practice and television viewing party for the Clemson-Virginia Tech football game on Thursday evening, October 26. The event will be held in Littlejohn Coliseum, and admission to the event is free.

The events will begin at 7:00 PM with the introduction of the Clemson basketball team, followed by a short scrimmage. At 7:45 PM, the videoboard in Littlejohn Coliseum will be turned to the Clemson-Virginia Tech football game.

There will be various promotions and other activities during timeouts in the football game, plus games with prizes during halftime.

Chansi Stuckey

Senior Spotlight

By Ashley Earle

Vince Lombardi once said, "Every time a football player goes to ply his trade, he's got to play from the ground up - from the soles of his feet right up to his head. Every inch of him has to play. Some guys play with their heads. That's OK. You've got to be smart to be #1 in any business. But more importantly, you've got to play with your heart, with every fiber of your body. If you're lucky enough to find a guy with a lot of head and a lot of heart, he's never going to come off the field second."

Lombardi may have made this statement years ago, but everything he said describes wide receiver Chansi Stuckey. The fifth-year senior has an extraordinary work ethic and it shows in practice, and more importantly, on the football field. Stuckey loves the game of football and cherishes every moment he has had.

Going into his senior year, Stuckey knew he would have to step up and be a leader. Coming off of a First-Team All-ACC season, he also knew that the pressure on him would be high. Thus, he began working out right after his junior year, and he worked out a minimum of five days a week.

Joey Batson, Clemson's director of strength & conditioning, remarked on Stuckey's work ethic. "We (the football team) trained five days a week over the summer, and Chansi went above and beyond those workouts. He came in for extra workouts with our coaches, and he has taken his training to another level.

"He, along with a few of other players such as Anthony Waters, have been instrumental in the implementation of new strength training programs. We have one called 'Next Level Training' because of him.

I've noticed him working harder in practice now as well. When he catches the ball, he will run an extra 20 yards."

Stuckey's efforts have paid off. In the opener against Florida Atlantic this year, Stuckey had five of Clemson's 13 receptions for 66 yards and one touchdown. Traveling to Boston College the following weekend for the first time did not unsettle Stuckey. In the second game of his senior year, he had 11 receptions for 124 yards. The reception total was the most by an ACC player over the first half of the season.

After suffering a heartbreaking double overtime loss to the Eagles, the next game at #9 Florida State would prove to be more crucial than ever. Undeterred by the enormous pressure, Stuckey had three receptions for 34 yards, but most notably had a touchdown and a two-point conversion to help lead the Tigers to a 27-20 victory.

Stuckey saw limited playing time against North Carolina and Louisiana Tech, because the Tigers had big leads in each game. Stuckey sat out the entire second half of the Louisiana Tech game, yet he still had four receptions for 100 yards and a touchdown.

"In life, with anything that you want to do, you have to work hard to get there," said #2. "You can't be satisfied with what you've done in the past. I made All-ACC last year, but that's over now. It's a new year with a new team.

"We want to be the best, and every team in the nation is working to be good, so it's the little things that a player can do day-in and day-out to be better. Anyone can do it for a day, but when you work at getting better consistently, that's when you find great players."

Football was not Stuckey's first love when it came to sports. He began playing baseball when he was five and immediately favored the sport. At the age of six, Stuckey began playing basketball. Compared to the other sports he played, he was a "late-bloomer" in football. He began playing recreation football three years after baseball and two years after basketball.

However, it soon became apparent that there was something special about Stuckey every time he set foot on the gridiron. In middle school as a quarterback, he led his team to two championships. His middle school teammates became his best friends, and their friendship continued throughout high school.

"In my high school career, we lost five games in four years, and we played for the state championship my senior year," recalled Stuckey. "We lost 12-7, and that's when I began to truly care about football. I had a few offers to play basketball and baseball in college, but our high school is a big football school. When I started to take some official visits, I enjoyed what I was seeing in college football, so it started to grow on me."

Stuckey's high school success did lead to many college offers. Clemson, Auburn, Georgia Tech, Florida, Florida State, Georgia, Tennessee, and South Carolina all offered him a football scholarship. However, only Clemson, Auburn, and Georgia Tech recruited him as a quarterback. After playing the quarterback position since the seventh grade, Stuckey wanted to play it in college. As a result, he focused his attention on those three schools. While on a visit to Clemson, Stuckey and his former classmate Justin Miller (now with the New York Jets) decided that Clemson was the place for them.

Stuckey had played multiple sports in high school. Few do that in college, but Stuckey decided to give basketball a try as well as football. During his first year at Clemson, Stuckey was a member of both the football and basketball teams. After the football season ended in late December that year, he joined Larry Shyatt's basketball team as a reserve point guard, working in practice each day to help make Edward Scott an All-ACC player.

While it was easy to play multiple sports in high school, Stuckey found it harder in college. "It was an extremely long season," remembered Stuckey of the 2002-03 academic year. "Football season began when I entered school in July with workouts. Then when football ended, I went straight into basketball, and that's an extremely long season."

"Looking back, playing basketball kind of hurt me some, because I couldn't work out with the football team like I wanted. I couldn't gain the weight that I needed, and I had to make a decision and stick to one sport."

Stuckey chose to play football and focus on improving his skills. After red-shirting his freshman year as a quarterback, Stuckey planned on making an impression his second year. As backup quarterback to Charlie Whitehurst, he played in eight games and had 17 carries for 136 yards rushing, the best rushing average on the team on a per-carry basis.

He had his best game at Wake Forest. He completed 9-15 passes for 71 yards and two touchdowns, and had four carries for 35 yards. He had another impressive performance at South Carolina when he had 77 yards rushing on just six carries in a 63-17 Tiger victory.

He undoubtedly showed his athletic ability during his red-shirt freshman year. However, he was a backup quarterback to Whitehurst, who had two more years of eligibility remaining. Stuckey was too valuable to the offense to remain on the sidelines, so coaches met with him about changing positions.

Going from one position to another is not an easy task in football. It is especially rare to change a position and then start at the new position. However, Stuckey never paid attention to statistics. When he was told that he would be changing from quarterback to wideout in the spring of 2004, he smiled. He knew he had the potential to be a playmaker as a wide receiver.

"When I signed with Clemson, I thought I was a guy like Woody Dantzler," said Stuckey. "So I thought Clemson was the right place for me. Also, one of my friends, Justin Miller, and I came on an official visit together, and we decided at that point that we were going to go to the same school."

"After Derrick Hamilton turned professional a year early, Coach (Dabo) Swinney talked to me and told me I should move to receiver. I thought it was a great opportunity to be a playmaker. Over the years, I have grown to love it."

The position switch was arguably the best thing that could have happened to Stuckey. In the 2004 opener against Wake Forest, the red-shirt sophomore was a starter from day one. He had eight receptions and posted his first career 100-yard receiving game in Clemson's double-overtime victory. It might have been his best all-around game as a Tiger, as he had a significant block on Miller's punt return for a touchdown. He also blocked a punt.

"My first game as a wide receiver was one of those things where I didn't know what to expect," admitted Stuckey. "In a sense I was lucky, because Wake Forest didn't know who I was, so I was able to get open because they weren't really paying attention to me. It was one of those situations where I was able to play football again, and I was happy because I was able to contribute to our team."

"I was a little nervous, because there was pressure about me being a playmaker, but realistically, I wasn't the main guy that year. Airese Currie was the top receiver and made First-Team All-ACC. I was young and trying to learn everything I could from him. I'm in a leadership role now, so the pressure is much greater."

With a season under his belt as a wide receiver, Stuckey entered his red-shirt junior year with more confidence. In the opening game against #17 Texas A&M, he had a 47-yard punt return for a touchdown, the only touchdown the Tigers had in that thrilling 25-24 victory.

Against Georgia Tech and N.C. State, Stuckey had eight receptions in each game and became the top receiver in the ACC. Then in the homecoming game against Duke, Stuckey overcame an obstacle. Prior to that game, he had not had a touchdown catch. But against the Blue Devils, he had five catches for 112 yards and two touchdown catches.

From there, he never looked back. In the win over #16 Florida State, Stuckey had 156 receiving yards, and once again had two touchdown receptions. He became the first Tiger in history to have multiple touchdown catches in consecutive games.

At the end of the 2005 season, he was the top receiver in the ACC on a receptions-per-game basis, and was third in the ACC in reception yards per game (64.2). He also received the team's Most Improved Player award by the coaches at the end of the season. But his biggest achievement came when he was named First-Team All ACC, one of just two wideouts chosen.

This past summer, he received his undergraduate degree in sociology. He is one of three Tigers on the team who have already earned their degrees.

Now in his fifth and final year, Stuckey has moved into a greater leadership position. He understands the importance of a strong work ethic, and that is what he tries to impart to the other wideouts.

"The biggest thing I try to teach the younger wide receivers is how to practice," said Stuckey. "Practicing is a huge part of success. Now it's evident on the practice field when a younger guy catches the ball, because he is sprinting 20 extra yards, so when it happens in the game, it's like second nature to him."

While setting an example for his fellow wide receivers as well as the rest of the team, Stuckey has been successful with a new quarterback. Will Proctor and Stuckey came to school together and were neighbors. The two formed a friendship, and it shows five years later on the football field.

"He obviously played quarterback when he first got here, so he usually knows where I want to go with the ball," said Proctor. "He's extremely smart and knows the gameplan. He's a leader, he's 'Mr. Clutch,' he's a lot of things to this team. He's one of those guys that every time he catches the ball, even if it's just a screen drill, he's taking everything 40 or 50 yards downfield. Every time he gets the ball, he's practicing yards after the catch."

In the week leading up to the Wake Forest game in early October during practice, Stuckey broke his foot, forcing him to miss the Wake Forest and Temple games. While this would deter most people, he takes the injury in stride.

Stuckey is determined to work hard and be back in the lineup shortly, providing Clemson with spectacular catches and game-changing performances. When he does, he will once again show the work ethic that would make even a Hall of Fame coach like Vince Lombardi smile.

Brandon Cannon

Senior Spotlight

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

By Brittney Earle

True athletes share a passion for the game, a commitment to success, and lessons to last a lifetime. Brandon Cannon, a Clemson defensive end, not only exhibits these aspects on the field, but he also shows these qualities off the field. He is a loving husband, a proud father, and an overall good character and role model to the Tiger football family.

Growing up, Cannon was very family-oriented. He grew up with his mother, father, and two brothers in Cleveland, OH. His father worked various part-time jobs to take care of his family.

"It was pretty rough where I grew up in Cleveland, but my dad would always do anything to take care of us," stated Cannon. "I have always looked up to him for that."

At the age of 11, he and his family moved to Atlanta. "It was a hard transition to move from the north to south. People talked different, and I had to make new friends. But after living in the south, I've grown to like it, especially the warm weather."

Before his move, he was never seriously interested in the sport of football. In middle school, coaches would beg him to play until he finally said "yes." He became a natural talent when he started playing in middle school.

Building a strong foundation for success, both on and off the field, was not an unfamiliar saying to Cannon at Stephenson High School in Stone Mountain, GA. He fell in love with football during his years there. Stephenson High is known for its excellent football program, having the most Division I signees in Georgia after Cannon's senior season.

As a Jaguar, Cannon grew into a developed football player. He started for four years at Stephenson High School. Cannon was selected all-county both his junior and senior seasons. He was an honorable mention all-state selection with nine sacks his senior year while playing on both sides of the ball. He was also named team captain.

With his dedication and leadership, Cannon helped lead his high school to a 10-3 record and to the third round of the state playoffs. He then played in the Tennessee-Georgia All-Star game after his senior year.

Cannon was a four-star prospect by Rivals100.com and TheInsiders.com. He was rated as the 27th-best defensive end in the nation by TheInsiders.com, and ninth-best weakside defensive end by Rivals100.com. Along with his football accolades, Cannon was also a track standout.

During his senior year, he had many tough decisions to make in choosing between schools such as Auburn, Clemson, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Maryland, North Carolina, and Ohio State. Many of his teammates at Stephenson High chose to stay in the state of Georgia, including Reggie Ball, who will be the starting quarterback for Georgia Tech tonight.

"I was originally committed to Maryland, but after my visit to Clemson, I decided to become a Tiger," said #95. "Clemson was my last visit, and I fell in love with the school and atmosphere. It was also close to my family."

He red-shirted in 2002, transitioning from a high school football atmosphere to a collegiate one. His freshman year, he made lasting friendships with his roommates Gaines Adams and Donnell Clark.

"We always found ways to have fun," he laughed.

One of his most memorable moments was running down the Hill for the first time. "It's a feeling like no other to run down the Hill in front of thousands of screaming fans," he said. "Our fans are so alive and supportive of the program."

During his freshman and sophomore seasons, he learned from fellow defensive ends. Then he showed great improvement his junior year. He had his breakout game against Florida State in 2005.

At the time, Florida State was ranked #16 in the nation. In the game, he had three tackles in just eight plays. This was the best on a per-play basis by a Tiger all year.

Cannon is coming into his element this year. Against Wake Forest two weeks ago, he forced a fumble early in the fourth quarter that led to the tying touchdown. Classmate Donnell Clark (also on the cover of today's program) recovered it. Much has been made of the talented young players on Clemson's defensive line, but those two seniors made a huge play in the Tigers' comeback win in Winston-Salem.

Five days later against Temple, he had his second career multi-sack game. He led the team with two sacks in 29 snaps, the most by a Tiger defensive lineman.

Brandon Cannon's caused fumble in the fourth quarter at Wake Forest was a key play in Clemson's 27-17 comeback win.

Cannon always calls his parents after every game, and that was an enjoyable phone call after the victory at Wake Forest. He has been a big factor in the success of this year's senior class, a group that already has 29 wins in the last four years, including eight against ranked opponents.

There is a strong family bond to this year's senior class, something Cannon can relate to. He is known as a family man with a big heart. He lives with wife Tamaqua, his high school sweetheart, and son Deyon. After the birth of his son, Cannon became more focused on school. He has a drive to succeed in life because of his family. Tamaqua and Deyon come to all the games to support Cannon.

"If I'm half the man my father was to me, then I would be a good father to Deyon," said Cannon.

Cannon's father drives a truck across the country and makes it home on the weekends to attend his football games. He instills today the same parenting values that his father displays.

Cannon, one of three graduates on the 2006 team, received his management degree in May. He hopes to play professional football, but if that does not work out, he wants to get an entry-level management position, or go into commercial real estate.

Cannon has a passion for the game, a drive to succeed, and the ability to do great things for the Tigers this season. He has applied what he has learned on the field to everyday life. Over the years, Cannon has shown that he is a true athlete, not only by his determination and leadership on the field, but by his character off the field.

Brittney Earle, a freshman from Easley, SC, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Wife Tamaqua and son Deyon are big supporters of Brandon Cannon in the stands.

Donnell Clark

Senior Spotlight

By Joni Byars

Hard times coupled with injuries unfortunately seem to happen every year in football programs across the country. Senior nose guard Donnell Clark can tell you about both occurrences. While he has suffered quite a few injuries during his football career, including a broken hand and ankle injury, the most excruciating one was his torn ACL injury suffered last season.

After tearing his ACL during the Temple game, Clark missed the rest of the season and all of spring practice to recover from surgery. It is not easy sitting out with an injury when one wants to be out there on the gridiron playing ball according to Clark.

"It was more difficult to sit out of the rest of the 2005 season than it was to not be able to play in spring practice."

Clark recalled his hard times recently after an afternoon practice. "Things got a little rough during my recovery time, but I had K.G. (Kelvin Grant) to work with me when I was hurt, and after that I had Zach (Green). We all helped each other through our injuries."

During all of this, Clark had his mom and family to talk to, and they gave him advice when times got rough.

"My mom is who I really look to anytime I feel like I don't want to do this anymore. She raised three boys with my grandma, and we all turned out ok, so sometimes I would just call home when I was hurting, and they would tell me I'm not coming home unless I get my degree."

Clark was a two-year letterman in wrestling in high school, and he won the regional title as a heavy-weight as a senior. He was also a three-year letterman for Griffin High's track & field team, as he was a regional champion in the shot put and a runner-up in the discus throw. Clark also managed to have the time to be a three-star prospect for football (Rivals100.com), and chose Clemson over Auburn, Florida State, and Georgia.

Leadership is a big part of his contribution to the team. He can be seen pumping up the crowd after big plays or getting the crowd louder on an opponent's third down. He no doubt committed these skills to memory from his high school days as team captain his senior year. He was also selected captain of the Georgia squad in the annual Florida-Georgia All-Star game.

"I just go out there and take care of business, and try to lead by example," Clark said.

He is no stranger to giving veteran advice when it comes to helping younger players advance their skills on the field as well.

"I've seen almost every blocking scheme there is, so if I see something that they are doing wrong that might later help them out, I tell them that they need to change it, or I tell them what to look for."

Coaches who made a tremendous impact on his career include his high school coach (Steve Devoursney), former Clemson Defensive Line Coach Marion Hobby, and current Defensive Line Coach Chris Rumph. Rumph, who was a linebacker at South Carolina, got his first career start as a red-shirt sophomore in 1992 in the win against Clemson in Death Valley.

"Donnell is doing a great job," stated Rumph. "I don't think his knee is quite back yet, but he's giving effort every day, and he's out there trying to lead those young guys in the right direction."

"Donnell is a backup, but he's really not a backup. I can switch him and Dorell (Scott) at anytime. When I sub Donnell in, I don't worry about anything because I know the job is going to get done. I don't worry if there is going to be a drop in intensity, or if the talent level is dropping. Before he got hurt, he was really playing well."

Clark's leadership abilities for the younger players is unique according to Rumph. "He's been on some of those teams that have been ranked high. Some have faded or let up and suffered a gut-wrenching defeat to a Duke or a Wake Forest. He's constantly reminding those guys about that and helping to keep them focused."

"It's like I'm the preacher and he's the choir. He gives me a good 'Amen' every once in awhile. I'm happy with where Donnell is and what he is doing right now for the team."

Strength comes easy for Clark when it comes to areas like lifting weights. Perhaps it is because of his wrestling, shot put, and discus background from high school that makes strength training so painless for this 270-pound senior from Griffin, GA.

Nowadays, Clark can be found in the Clemson strength training room continuing his efforts to be one of the strongest defenders on the team. Clark can bench 455 pounds and does a 400-pound hang clean. Both are tops among Clemson defenders and third overall on the squad.

It is no doubt that ability such as this, along with sheer determination, helped this young defensive tackle come back from his injury that he suffered during last year's Temple game in Death Valley. He has made tremendous efforts to get back on the field, and is competing together with Scott at nose guard.

Playing as a backup has not kept Donnell Clark from being active and plugging the middle against opposing offenses.

Clark does not mind playing behind Scott after his injury last season. "Dorell is a really good player, and he's going to be great one day," admitted #44. "He goes full speed. Not starting isn't anything I'm complaining about, because I'm still getting my snaps and still getting an opportunity to show what I can do. Dorell is playing real good ball right now. It's exciting to see him out there making plays."

Tommy Bowden has been impressed with Clark's ability to come back from his severe knee injury, an indication of his work ethic. "That is a difficult injury to come back from, but it shows you the dedication Donnell has," said Clemson's eighth-year head coach. "He approaches everything that way. He is one of the reasons Dorell Scott is so improved, because he pushes him in practice every day. They make each other better players."

Clark would no doubt say that his favorite sport has always been football, dating to his eighth-grade year when he was a linebacker. However, playing other sports did assist him with his football tactics.

"Wrestling helped me out, because it helps you learn how to use your hands by positioning better."

Clark credits DeJuan Polk with aiding him with more defensive line knowledge as a newcomer. Polk was a defensive tackle for Clemson from 1999-03 who finished his career with 89 tackles. Polk, a team co-captain in 2003, is now one of the youngest scouts in the NFL with the Atlanta Falcons.

Clark is the veteran of the defensive line, which is evident by the many statistical contributions that he has made for the Tigers. During the Duke game in 2004, Clark recorded his first tackle for loss. He finished the season with 17 tackles, one pass breakup, and three quarterback pressures as a red-shirt sophomore.

Last year, Clark started six of the first seven games before suffering his injury during the Temple game. He did not start the Miami (FL) game, but did record his first career sack. That was quite a play for Clark, because the game was shown on ABC television to more than half the nation.

During the seven games that Clark played before his injury, he had 11 tackles, four tackles for loss, two sacks, and four quarterback pressures.

One of Clark's favorite things about being at Clemson has been playing football, and he is considering whether or not he wants to be a teacher and football coach one day.

"Coaching at the college level would be ideal, but I just want to stay around football," Clark stated.

He will receive his degree in travel & tourism in May, and said one of the best things about coming to school at Clemson is that, "the degree that I'm about to receive has real value."

Clark has taken pleasure in being a Tiger and loves playing in Death Valley. "I enjoy playing in front of the fans," he said with a smile. "It feels more like a million people, but I've enjoyed myself here, and I like the way the fans are respectful. They know when to be loud and when not to be loud."

Clark's favorite road game victory was the Miami game in the Orange Bowl in 2004. The team was excited about their feat, but when they came back to campus that same night, they were a little disappointed.

"We came back that night expecting a big celebration, but no one was out. We were calling people before we got on the plane, and they said 'we're having a big party on Bowman Field,' but when we got there, nobody was out."

Donnell Clark has overcome a demoralizing ACL injury in 2005 to contribute on Clemson's top-flight defense this season.

Donnell Clark recorded his first career sack against #13 Miami (FL) in front of a raucous Death Valley crowd during the 2005 season.

There had been plenty of celebrating in Clemson, but hours earlier. The team did not return from the night game until after 3:00 AM. In the "old days," monumental wins such as that would have hundreds of people crowding the Greenville/Spartanburg Airport, not unlike the Maryland win in 1978 when the Tigers clinched the ACC title. But in those days, all the games were day games, and the team returned at a reasonable hour. Such is the price of progress...and more games on ESPN.

Clark came to Clemson with fellow seniors Brandon Cannon and Gaines Adams. They were all red-shirt freshmen in 2002 and learned a great deal from each other, and they have a lot of good memories that began during that time. They are all good friends and will likely continue their friendship when they leave Clemson.

This year, these same jokesters will leave Clemson with their prospective degrees in hand, and many years of football knowledge and experience that they will pass on to their own children, or to those they choose to coach, or maybe even take with them into the NFL.

Clark has overcome his ACL injury with prestige and with the utmost strength to remain a threat on the defensive line for the Tigers. Today, this Georgia native will play in his last regular-season game against Georgia Tech. He missed out on last year's game against the Yellow Jackets since he tore his ACL the week before.

No matter who the opponent might be, it better come prepared to face this strong-willed defensive lineman and many others this evening, as the Tigers defend their turf against the Yellow Jackets in this Homecoming showdown.

Note: All cities are in South Carolina.

In addition to being a teacher and a leader, James F. Barker is an architect, an artist, and a builder of one of the nation's most rapidly improving public universities, Clemson. Barker came to the office in 1999 with a clear vision and a goal of making

Clemson one of the nation's top 20 public universities - an institution that draws outstanding faculty and students, provides an unmatched academic experience, and helps drive the state's economic development.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, Barker has said, "South Carolina needs a top-tier research university, and our students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state. Building Clemson's academic, research, and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Clemson, already South Carolina's top-ranked public university, is making strides toward that goal. During Barker's presidency, the university has:

- been recognized as Time Magazine's "Public College-of-the-Year" and ranked #1 among the "Best Places to Work in Academia" by The Scientist Magazine.

developed and implemented an academic "Road Map" with eight emphasis areas aligned with South Carolina's economic needs.

- launched major new education and research-based economic initiatives, including the Clemson University International Center for Automotive Research (CU-ICAR) in Greenville, and the Clemson University Restoration Institute in Charleston.

- redesigned the general education curriculum to focus on learning outcomes, and give undergraduates more opportunities for study abroad, service-learning, and research.

- hosted the first-ever ACC "Meeting of the Minds" conference for undergraduate research and creative inquiry.

- attracted more students who are clearly among America's best.

- more than doubled external research funding, and completed Clemson's largest capital campaign.

Working with state leaders and private industry partners, Barker has steered Clemson into a greater economic development role. Master planning is complete for the CU-ICAR campus near I-85. The BMW Information Technology Resources Center is operational and construction is underway on the Carroll Campbell Graduate Engineering Center. The first class of Ph.D. students in automotive engineering will enter this fall and recruiting has begun for master's degree candidates. They will be taught by distinguished professors brought to the state to hold endowed chairs established under the South Carolina Research Centers of Excellence Act. Three of the four chairs devoted to automotive engineering - the BMW Chair, the Michelin Chair, and the Timken Chair - have already been filled.

Clemson is also investing $80 million to develop an advanced materials industry cluster. The linchpin is the Advanced Materials Research Laboratory, located in the Clemson Research Park in Anderson County, which is anchored by the nation's top optical materials and electron microscopy laboratories.

Barker also is becoming a leading voice in higher education in South Carolina and beyond. He currently chairs the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and chaired the ACC Council of Presidents during the league's recent expansion. He began a term on the national NCAA Board of Directors in spring of 2006.

For his leadership, Barker has received the Order of the Palmetto, South Carolina's highest civilian honor, and the 2006 Chief Executive Leadership Award from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) Southeastern District III. He was an invited speaker at the first-ever Forum on Presidential Leadership in June of 2006, sponsored by The Chronicle of Higher Education, and attended by more than 250 college and university presidents and trustees.

As president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. Each spring, he is part of a team that teaches an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

In presenting the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 2005, Washington University Chancellor Mark Wrighton said, "James F. Barker has taken the architectural skills and knowledge required to design a building and applied them to the future of a university. His architect's vision, collaborative instincts, and sense of place are rapidly pushing Clemson up through the ranks of the nation's top public universities. He has become a leader in national academic circles by creating a new model of education, building interdisciplinary partnerships among the professional schools, and the basic curriculum by tearing down artificial walls between disciplines."

A native of Kingsport, TN, Barker earned his B.A. degree from Clemson in 1970 and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO in 1973. He and his wife Marcia have a son (Jacob) and daughter-in-law (Rita Bolt), and another son Britt.

Jim & Marcia Barker

Clemson's Goals By 2010

Academics, Research, & Service

1. Excel in teaching, at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.
2. Increase research and sponsored programs to exceed $100 million a year in research support.
3. Set the standard in public service for land-grant universities by engaging the whole campus in service and outreach, including a focus on strategic emphasis areas.
4. Foster Clemson's academic reputation through strong academic programs, mission-oriented research and academic centers of excellence, relevant public service, and highly-regarded faculty and staff.
5. Seek and cultivate areas where teaching, research, and service overlap.

Campus Life

1. Strengthen our sense of community and increase our diversity.
2. Recognize and appreciate Clemson's distinctiveness.
3. Create greater awareness of international programs and increase activity in this area.
4. Increase our focus on collaboration.
5. Maintain an environment that is healthy, safe, and attractive.

Clemson's National Reputation

1. Promote high integrity and professional demeanor among all members of the University community.
2. Establish a Phi Beta Kappa chapter.
3. Have at least two Clemson students win Rhodes Scholarships.
4. Send student ensembles to perform at Carnegie Hall.
5. Have at least two Clemson faculty members win recognition by national academies.
6. Publicize both national and international accomplishments of faculty, staff, and students.
7. While maintaining full compliance, achieve notable recognition with another national football championship, two championships in Olympic sports, and two Final Four appearances in basketball.

Educational Resources

1. Campaign goal surpassed by 40 percent.
2. Rededicate our energy and resources to improving the library.
3. Increase faculty compensation to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
4. Increase academic expenditures per student to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
5. Manage enrollment to ensure the highest quality classroom experiences.

Student Performance

1. Attract more students who are ranked in the top-10 percent of their high school classes and who perform exceptionally well on the SAT/ACT.
2. Promote high graduation rates by increasing freshman retention, meeting expectations of high achievers, and providing support systems for all students.
3. Promote excellence in advising.
4. Increase the annual number of doctoral graduates to the level of a top-20 public research university.
5. Improve the national competitiveness of graduate student admissions and financial aid.

Dr. Terry Don Phillips

Clemson University Athletic Director

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

It hasn't taken Dr. Terry Don Phillips long to make his mark on Clemson University. That impact was recognized in June of 2006 when he was honored by NACDA (National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics) as the 2005-06

GeneralSports Turf Systems Athletic Director-of-the-Year for the Southeast Region of Division I-A. He was one of just four Division I-A athletic directors honored at the annual convention in New Orleans.

Phillips was honored for many reasons. In 2005-06, Clemson finished its most successful all-around athletics year in his tenure. The program had six-top 25 programs, including top-10 final rankings in men's soccer, golf, and baseball. It marked the first time since 1979 that Clemson reached the Final Four in soccer and the College World Series in baseball in the same academic year.

Clemson also had top-25 finishes in football, men's tennis, and women's tennis. The school's athletic program won a postseason football, men's basketball, and baseball game this academic year, the first time the program has done that since 1993-94. Clemson was the only school in the country to win a postseason football game, a postseason basketball game, and a College World Series game.

Clemson finished #32 in the nation in the Director's Cup standings on a per-sport basis in 2005-06 and #39 in total points, Clemson's highest rankings under the current scoring structure.

From an academic standpoint, nine of Clemson's 15 sports programs scored a perfect 100-percent graduation rate according to the Graduation Success Rate (GSR) figures announced by the NCAA on December 19, 2005. Clemson was #7 in the nation among the 119 Division I-A institutions in percentage of programs with a 100-percent score.

The Tiger football program had a 94-percent rate, fourth in the nation among Division I programs, trailing only Navy, Notre Dame, and Wake Forest. In the spring semester of 2006, the 15 programs had a combined GPA of 2.84, third-best on record, and all-time records were set for most Dean's List and President's List student-athletes.

"There's nothing worse than trying to maintain status quo," said Phillips, who became Clemson's 10th athletic director on July 1, 2002.

That motto has been a basic tenet that has characterized his career as an administrator and his pursuit to develop Clemson into a model athletic program in the 21st century. His beliefs are in line with the University's overall goal of making Clemson one of the top-20 public universities in the nation.

His resolve comes from a unique balance of experience in nearly every phase of college athletics, as well as a devotion to higher education that includes both a doctorate and law degree. He remains a classroom presence by teaching a Sports Law section in the Accountancy & Legal Studies department. In addition, he is chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee, which serves the appellate role for all university and individual appeals arising from the Committee on Infractions.

Those influences are obvious in his strategic plan for Tiger athletics, which provides for a model program that can compete at the highest levels with academic integrity, concern for the student-athlete, financial responsibility, and in full compliance.

Steady strides have been made toward these goals through facility improvements and the development of concepts that will serve the entire program, starting with the endzone expansion. In 2006, 1,000 premium club seats will open and create a vital new revenue stream for future facilities.

Future plans call for a new comprehensive football building at Memorial Stadium. It will benefit the entire department, as it will create additional updated facilities in the McFadden Building for the Olympic sports program. A "One Clemson Center" will also be constructed to showcase the history of Clemson University, including its military and athletic heritage.

Since Phillips' arrival at Clemson, many highlights toward being a model program have occurred on the field as well, beginning with Clemson's first-ever national championship in golf in the spring of 2003, the first title for any Tiger program in 16 years.

His second year included an incredible run on the gridiron to end the season, as Tommy Bowden's Tigers defeated #3 Florida State in November and #6 Tennessee in the Peach Bowl. The football program has continued to make strides since then and ranked in the top 25 for the second time in the last three years with its #21 finish in 2005, and it is a consensus top 20 team in the preseason for 2006.

The women's tennis team was one of three programs to win ACC Championships in the same weekend in 2003-04 and advanced to the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament, the first women's athletic team in Clemson history to reach the Final Four in any postseason tournament. Nancy Harris' team duplicated the accomplishment in 2004-05, and has a string of four-straight top-20 seasons.

Excellence in academics has been a constant on his resumé. He has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar, American Bar Association, and the Sports Lawyers Association.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in nearly all phases of college athletics. He coached on the football staff at Virginia Tech, supervised spring sports and student-athlete enrichment at Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and had 15 years experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level, prior to his appointment at Clemson, coming from Oklahoma State.

Football was transformed from a perennial losing status to defeating Oklahoma during five of the eight years he was associated with Oklahoma State (1994-02). For this, he received the National Football Foundation Oklahoma Chapter Outstanding Contribution to Amateur Football Award in 2002.

When it came to success on the field and in the classroom, OSU's programs were among the Big 12's best. The achievements of the program included two national titles in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, 13 Big 12 titles, and 11 individual national champions, along with 53 academic All-Americans.

Before leading Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was athletic director at Liberty (1980-81) and Louisiana-Lafayette (1983-88). He was also an assistant athletic director at Missouri (1981-83), and began his administrative career in 1979 as an assistant athletic director at Florida.

Phillips began his career in college athletics coaching football. He started as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration.

Winning has been on his resumé since his playing days at Arkansas. He lettered on three Frank Broyles teams (1966,68,69). Arkansas was 27-5 in the three years and played in two Sugar Bowl games.

In addition to Phillips' leadership with the NCAA Infractions Appeals Committee, he also works with the NCAA certification program. He currently serves on several ACC Committees: Finance Committee, chair of the Committee on Infractions & Penalties, Television Committee, the Men's Basketball Committee, and the Football Committee.

Phillips has two children, John Dennis (29) and Sarah-Jane (26), and three step-children, Meagan (17), Marshall (15), and Madison (13). His wife Tricia is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, and earlier enjoyed a career in athletics and development. She is now active in the Clemson and Seneca communities.

Tommy Bowden

Head Coach

When one looks at Tommy Bowden's resumé, the first thing that comes to mind is consistency. Bowden has completed nine seasons as a Division I head coach, and all nine of his teams have been bowl eligible at the conclusion of the regular season.

Each of his last six teams have finished the season with a winning record. A winning season in 2006 would give him a Tiger coaching record seven straight winning seasons, and he would become just the fifth head coach in ACC history to record seven straight winning seasons with the same program.

Bowden has also shown consistency in terms of improvement over the course of seasons. In each of the last three years, his teams have won at least five of its last six games. The 2003 team won its last four games, including wins over top-10 Florida State and Tennessee to finish ranked in the top 25. The 2005 team won six of its last seven games, a first for a Tiger team since 1991.

There has also been consistency in terms of success against Clemson's in-state rival (South Carolina). The Tigers have won six of the seven meetings with the Gamecocks since Bowden became Clemson's head coach in 1999, and the 85.7-percent winning mark is the best of any Tiger head coach in history against the Gamecocks given a minimum of five games. He has an average victory margin of 12.3 points per game in the state-rivalry game, and all six wins have been recorded against future Hall of Fame Head Coaches Lou Holtz and Steve Spurrier.

Through nine seasons as a Division I head coach, Bowden has a 70-37 record, a 65.4-percent winning mark that is eighth-best among active coaches with at least six years of experience. In conference games, he has never had a sub-.500 record, and his overall conference record stands at 43-25 for a 63.2-percent winning percentage.

In seven years at Clemson, he has a 52-33 (.612) mark and six bowl appearances. He has 32 ACC wins as well. The only program with more ACC wins during this time is Florida State. The 52 overall victories rank third in Clemson history in total wins. The 29-7 victory over South Carolina in the 2004 season finale was not only the 600th win in Clemson history, it moved Bowden ahead of Hall of Fame Coach Jess Neely into third place on Clemson's coaching victories list. Only Frank Howard and Danny Ford are ahead of Bowden.

Bowden has tallied his record against a difficult schedule. In his first year at Clemson, the schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the wins was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was the highest-ranked road win in 20 years for the program. In 2003 and 2004, Clemson's schedule strength once again ranked in the top 25 by the Sagarin rating. The 2005 team faced five top-25 teams in the regular season, a first in school history.

Twice Bowden has received ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors (1999,03), joining Howard, Charley Pell, and Ford as the only two-time recipients of that award in Clemson football history. In January of 2006, he was given the Grant Teaff National Coach-of-the-Year Award by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Off the field, Clemson has graduated nearly 80 percent of its seniors in his seven years. Clemson's graduation success rate of 94 percent in 2005 was fourth-best among the 119 Division I programs. In 2003, Clemson was 11th in the nation, including second among public schools, in the NCAA graduation-rate study for scholarship football signees who entered Clemson in 1996. Clemson was first in the nation in graduation rate among African-Americans (100 percent). Each of the top-six semester team GPAs have been recorded under Bowden.

In 2005, Clemson had a record of 8-4, including a 3-2 mark against top-25 ranked teams. All four of the losses were by six points or less and by a total of 14 points. Two of those losses came in overtime, therefore the Tigers lost the four games by a combined five points at the end of regulation.

The 2005 team also won six of its last seven games, including a 19-10 win over Colorado in the Champs Sports Bowl. Clemson had the best record among the 12 ACC teams over that time period.

Clemson finished in the top 25 in four national defensive rankings, including 11th in scoring defense. After the victory over Colorado in the Champs

Playing Experience

Wide receiver at West Virginia (1973-76).

Bowl Participation as a Player

1975 Peach Bowl.

Education

B.S. degree in physical education with a minor in health from West Virginia in 1977.

Head Coaching Record

70-37 (65.4-percent winning mark) in nine seasons...18-4 in two seasons at Tulane...52-33 in his seven seasons at Clemson.

Personal Data

Born July 10, 1954...married to the former Linda Joan White...the couple has a son (Ryan 24, a 2004 Clemson graduate and current law student at Regent University) and a daughter (Lauren 21, a senior at Clemson).

Sports Bowl, the Tigers were ranked #21 in the final Associated Press and USA Today polls. Clemson had three wins over top-20 ranked teams, the most in one season by a Tiger team since 1989.

In four years at Clemson, Charlie Whitehurst became the most prolific signal-caller in school history. He set 46 Tiger records, including records for passing yards (9,665), completions (817), completion percentage (59.5), and touchdown passes (49). He directed Clemson to 25 wins as a starting quarterback, the second-most wins in school history.

Consistency in his approach is one reason Clemson went from a 1-4 start to bowl eligibility in 2004. It was the first time since 1963 that a Tiger team had overcome such a deficit to finish with a winning record.

Clemson played a complete game at #10 Miami (FL) on November 6, 2004 and defeated the Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl 24-17 in overtime. It was the second overtime win of the year for the Tigers, who are 4-2 in extra-session games under Bowden.

The win over Miami gave Bowden and the Tigers three wins over top-10 programs in a 13-game span, something that had been done at Clemson just once previously (1981 National Championship team). All three of those programs (Florida State, Tennessee, Miami) have won the national championship within the last eight seasons.

Over the last three seasons, Bowden has won seven games over coaches who have won the national title (Bobby Bowden (twice), Phillip Fulmer, Larry Coker, Holtz (twice), and Spurrier). These big wins have stimulated interest in the program. The Tigers averaged over 78,000 fans per home game in 2005. Clemson has been in the top 20 in home attendance each of his seven years at Clemson, and five of the top-nine average figures have come in his tenure.

With Clemson's selection to the 2004 Peach Bowl, Bowden became the first head coach in Clemson and ACC history to take a team to a bowl game in each of his first five seasons. In fact, no coach had ever done so more than twice to open his career at Clemson.

The 2004 Peach Bowl appearance meant that it was the first time since the senior class of 1991 that Clemson went to a bowl game five straight years. Clemson's red-shirt seniors of 2003 were the first group he recruited, so it is an indication of the firm foundation his first group set. In December of 2003, Bowden cemented his place at Clemson by signing a seven-year contract, which will go through 2010.

The 2003 season was a breakthrough year in many ways. Clemson earned its highest-ever win over a ranked team with a 26-10 victory over #3 Florida State. The Tigers also defeated #24 Virginia in a thrilling overtime game. The 39-3 win over a bowl-bound Georgia Tech team was Clemson's largest victory margin in the series since 1900 as well.

The 2003 victory over Florida State, Clemson's first in 12 tries since the Seminoles joined the ACC, was the beginning of a four-game winning streak to close the season. In those four games, Clemson outscored its opponents 156-48, an average score of 39-12. Clemson defeated arch-rival South Carolina in Columbia 63-17. It was the most points ever scored by a team in the 101-game series and the Tigers' largest win margin in the series since 1900.

The season concluded with a 27-14 win over #6 Tennessee, the highest-ranked team Clemson has defeated in a bowl game since 1981, when the Tigers defeated #4 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl to claim the national championship. As a result, Clemson finished the season with nine wins and a #22 final national ranking.

The 2002 season included victories over bowl teams Georgia Tech and Wake Forest, and a third victory in four years over arch-rival South Carolina. Clemson gained 434 yards of total offense in the 27-20 win over the Gamecocks, the most yards against Holtz's defense all season.

Clemson had another record-setting season in 2001, a season that culminated with a Humanitarian Bowl victory over Louisiana Tech. Clemson set school records for points scored, touchdowns, and total offense in a bowl game in the victory.

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

In 2000 and 2001, his dynamic offense produced a Heisman Trophy contender in quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, who placed his name next to 52 school records. In 2001, he became the first quarterback in Division I history to total 2,000 yards passing and 1,000 yards rushing in a single season.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal - improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach-of-the-Year.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1998 season ranked #7 in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight games in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game, the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays. The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter coaching.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-75 and then for Frank Cignetti during the 1976 season.

Tommy Bowden has kept Clemson pointed in the right direction since becoming the Tigers' 24th head football coach in 1999.

As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Cignetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

In 1980, Bowden joined the East Carolina staff, where he coached during spring practice in 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers' running backs coach for the 1980 season.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked #13 in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

From 1983-86, Bowden served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the quarterbacks coach, and was named coordinator in 1985. In 1984, he made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players he tutored was future NFL player Anthony Dilweg.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was there that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator role, serving as Kentucky's offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He remained with Auburn for six years, his longest stint as an assistant. Auburn had a combined record of 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993.

Born on July 10, 1954 in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown (WV) High. The couple has two children, Ryan (24), a 2004 Clemson graduate and currently a law student at Regent University, and Lauren (21), a senior at Clemson.

Memorial Stadium

"Death Valley"

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in the nation in attendance 25 straight seasons. In 2005, the streak continued when Clemson averaged 78,232 fans per game.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 231 games in 64 years there and has won over 70 percent of the contests (231-90-7). Forty times since 1983, a crowd has exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before Head Coach Jess Neely left for Rice after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message.

"Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the YMCA. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, the boy was swollen twice his size and was hospitalized.

There are many other stories about the sta-

Memorial Stadium

"Death Valley"

adium, including one that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks to pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and in 1960, 5,658 west endzone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large endzone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side as crowds swelled - the first in 1978 and the second in '83. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged by the late Presbyterian Coach Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, he said the place was like "Death Valley."

A few years later the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Running Down The Hill

"The Most Exciting 25 Seconds in College Football"

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season, less than a year after Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was drawn into World War II.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west endzone - there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the scoreboard now stands and jog down the Hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no Tiger Paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side-straddle hop.

That is pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Head Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, California to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike Fieldhouse for years. One day, he was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was executive secretary of IPTAY, to "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office!"

Willimon did not think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3,000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-1960s, Memorial Stadium was living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open each season by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three victories and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting "killed" by the Tigers regularly. In 1948, McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next four years, but in the mid-1950s, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 60th anniversary of the "Death Valley" in 2001.

Running Down The Hill

"The Most Exciting 25 Seconds in College Football"

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

But getting back to Howard's Rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the Hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966 on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth quarter. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the Hill on September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest by a score of 23-6.

Prior to running down the Hill that day, Howard told his players, "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it."

Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west endzone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971, and the first four games of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the Hill, their combined record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the Hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt, which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 313 times heading into the 2006 season.

After final warmups, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west endzone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff, the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east endzone, and disembarks to the top of the Hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying Tiger Paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up "Tiger Rag"...the frenzy starts in all sincerity and usually lasts for three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

"The Rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the Hill, the adrenaline flows. It's the most emotional experience I've ever had."
Six-time All-Pro and former Tiger All-American Michael Dean Perry

IPTAY SCHOLARSHIP FUND

MAKE YOUR CONTRIBUTION TODAY!

2007

For 73 years, IPTAY has been the lifeblood of Tiger Athletics - transforming Clemson University from a regional presence to a national power - and providing a model of success for other educational systems to follow. Our Mission is no different today than it was 73 years ago when IPTAY was created.

The Four Priorities of the IPTAY Scholarship Fund

1. The payment of the annual cost of athletic scholarships.
2. The payment or reimbursement of the operating expenses of IPTAY.
3. The establishment and maintenance of an adequate reserve fund deemed appropriate by the IPTAY Board of Directors.
4. Any expenditure other than those established under the previous three priorities, shall be limited to either direct or indirect aids to the athletic program of Clemson University and must be approved by the IPTAY Board of Directors.

Please note that by making your contribution to IPTAY, You agree to abide by all NCAA regulations.

Minimum Priority Contribution is $140. Contributions of any amount to the IPTAY Scholarship Fund are welcome.

REPEAT.

Rehydrating and replenishing champions again and again since 1965.

The game broadcast is anchored by Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg, SC took over in September, 2003 after the passing of Jim Phillips, who had been the longtime voice of the Tigers since 1968. Yanity has been a part of the broadcast team since 2001 as the host of the pregame, halftime, and postgame shows, and as the sideline reporter during games.

Yanity has been the sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg the last 16 years. He has also been a sideline analyst for 10 years on Carolina Panther preseason football games and has considerable play-by-play experience for Comcast Sports Southeast, covering various college events, including Tiger football and baseball. Yanity is also the voice of Tiger basketball and the host of the Tommy Bowden and Oliver Purnell Television Shows.

Joining Yanity in the booth is former Clemson offensive lineman Will Merritt, who played for the Tigers from 1998-01. He was a starter in 2000 and 2001 when he was named Second-Team All-ACC.

Merritt worked on the Clemson radio network pregame and postgame shows during the 2002 season. He also provided color commentary on the television tape-delay broadcasts of selected 2002 games. In 2003, he became the color analyst of the gameday broadcasts. The native of Easley, SC is the host of "The Morning Drive," a sports talk show that airs each morning on WCCP (104.9 FM) in Clemson.

Former Clemson Academic All-American linebacker Chad Carson completes the broadcast team as the sideline commentator. Carson served in that capacity for the final two games of 2003, and all of 2004 and 2005. Carson is fourth in Clemson history in career tackles and was a starter on Tommy Bowden's first three Tiger teams.

As has been the case in the past, the gameday broadcast begins with the Tommy Bowden Pregame Show. Bowden meets with Sports Information Director Tim Bourret to provide Clemson fans with the latest lineup and strategy information. Yanity and Merritt also provide a last-minute scene-setter that includes the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, fans can tune into the "Fifth Quarter Show," hosted by Ralph Patterson and Munson, or attend the show live from the Wild Wing Cafe in downtown Greenville, SC. Interviews with Coach Bowden and Assistant Coaches Rob Spence and Vic Koenning are also included. An added feature includes locker room interviews with Clemson's top players that day. A rundown of the game stats and audio highlights are provided.

Fans can follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls" each Thursday evening with Bowden and Don Munson from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. The shows will air live from several Ingles grocery stores in the Clemson area.

The Clemson Tiger Sports Network also produces the Tommy Bowden Television Show, a recap of the previous game's highlights. Yanity serves as the host of this program that gives fans insight

Remembering 1981 Tiger Lettermen

25th Anniversary of the 1981 National Championship Team

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

By Tim Bourret

In celebration of the 25th anniversary of Clemson's 1981 National Championship season, we will recall the careers of all the lettermen for the Tigers that season. We will go through the list in alphabetical order, 10 players at a time, as we progress through the season.

#41 Jerry Gaillard • WR

Jerry Gaillard was the second leading receiver on Clemson's national championship team with 19 catches for 218 yards and a score. That one touchdown was celebrated with great enthusiasm by him and the entire team, because it was his first career touchdown, and it took place in his final home game, a 21-7 win over Maryland.

Gaillard was born in nearby Anderson, SC, but he was an "army brat" who attended school in South America, Alabama, and Arizona before coming to Clemson. When he finished his career, he was seventh in school history in receptions (66).

Today, Gaillard lives in Atlanta, GA, and he works in the computer industry.

#11 Mike Gasque • QB

Mike Gasque was the backup quarterback to Homer Jordan as a senior in 1981. He played in six games and connected on 5-8 passes for 91 yards, including a touchdown to Perry Tuttle against Wake Forest. He saw his most action against Georgia in 1980 when Jordan was injured. He completed 8-16 passes, and led Clemson to all 16 of its points in the 20-16 loss to the eventual National Champion. He scored a touchdown on a one-yard run after he alertly picked up a fumble.

A native of Elon College, NC, Gasque was an administrative management major, and was a regular on the academic honor roll.

#53 Joe Glenn • DE

Glenn shared playing time at defensive end with Bill Smith for much of the 1981 season. He had 23 tackles that season, including three in the Orange Bowl. The native of Columbia, SC and A.C. Flora High had five sacks in 1981, second-most on the team behind Jeff Bryant. Glenn's top game in 1981 took place at Tulane, where he had two sacks and recovered a fumble.

#29 Hollis Hall • CB

When 1981 began, few regarded Hollis Hall and Anthony Rose as strong components of the defense. But by season's end, they combined with Terry Kinard to form one of the top defensive backfields in the nation.

While Kinard earned first-team All-America honors with his six interceptions, Hall had five thefts for 55 return yards and had 16 total passes defended, best on the team. The native of Seneca, SC also added 53 tackles, sixth-most on a defense that was second in the nation in scoring defense.

Hall now lives in Houston, TX, where he is the inventory production manager for AmerCable Inc. He has a 17-year-old son who plays linebacker in high school.

#5 Dale Hatcher • P

The most special moment for 1981 freshman punter Dale Hatcher might have been during warmups for the Tulane game in the Superdome at New Orleans. Hatcher idolized then Oakland Raiders punter Ray Guy, who was legendary for his high, booming punts.

Guy was known to be one of just two players to hit the gondola in the Superdome during pregame warmups. So, Danny Ford challenged Hatcher to hit the roof. Hatcher responded by doing it three times during practice.

Hatcher went on to an NFL career and played in the Pro Bowl after the 1985 season, his rookie year. He now lives in Gaffney, SC, where he is employed by Freight Liner Custom Chassis.

#12 Andy Headen • DE

Andy Headen introduced a new position to the Tiger defense in 1981. Defensive Coordinator Tom Harper took advantage of Headen's all-around abilities and invented a hybrid defensive end/linebacker position called "The Bandit." It is the same position (and name) that Gaines Adams plays today.

Harper wanted to sell Headen on making the position switch, so he thought if it had a "cool name," Headen would be more receptive. The psychology worked, and Headen went on to have a terrific season with 53 tackles, four sacks, and nine pass breakups. His final pass breakup came on the season's last play of the Orange Bowl, giving Clemson the national title.

Headen now lives near Greensboro, NC, where he works for Lorillard Tobacco Company.

#16 Richard Hendley • P

Richard Hendley is the answer to a Clemson football trivia question. Who was Clemson's starting punter between All-ACC players David Sims and Dale Hatcher? Sims was an All-America candidate in 1980 after averaging 43 yards a boot in 1979. But, Sims suffered a season-ending leg injury against Georgia in 1980.

Hendley averaged 38.5 yards a punt, with a solid 36.5-yard net figure when he started over the course of the 1980 season. He challenged Hatcher early in the year, and actually was the starter on opening day in 1981. But, Hatcher took over the job by the third game. That was certainly no shame for Hendley, as Hatcher became one of the top punters in school history.

#18 Donald Igwebuike • PK

Donald Igwebuike played on two top-10 Tiger teams that won ACC titles in the fall of 1981. Not only did he make 10-17 field goals on the gridiron, he was a starting striker on Clemson's #8-ranked men's soccer team. He actually was sixth on the football team and sixth on the soccer team in scoring that fall.

Igwebuike was one of the heroes in the win over Nebraska by kicking field goals of 41, 37, and 36 yards, providing the margin of victory in the 22-15 victory. He went on to an All-America season in 1984 when he made 16-17 field goals, leading the nation in field-goal percentage.

Igwebuike went on to a six-year NFL career with Tampa Bay and Minnesota.

#3 Homer Jordan • QB

Homer Jordan holds a distinction in Clemson football history that always elicits a cheer from the home crowd when he is introduced at any function. "The only quarterback to lead Clemson to a perfect 12-0 season."

Jordan's numbers in the Orange Bowl were not gaudy (134 passing yards and 46 rushing), but he effectively ran the offense and led the Tigers to victory, and he was named the game's MVP. After the game, he was near dehydration and had multiple IV bottles before leaving the locker room, well after the media's deadline.

Jordan now lives in his hometown of Athens, GA, where he is the quarterback coach at Ware Shoals High School. He also owns a car-detailing business.

#43 Terry Kinard • FS

History has shown that Terry Kinard was the most decorated Clemson football player on the 1981 team. Next to Banks McFadden, he might be the most decorated Tiger in history. Kinard was a First-Team Associated Press All-

American in 1981 and 1982, the only two-time, First-Team AP All-American in school history (in other words, the only Tiger to make two appearances on the Bob Hope Show).

Kinard was second on the 1981 team in tackles (95), and his six interceptions was 15th-best in the nation. The native of Sumter, SC was a first-round draft pick who played on a Super Bowl Championship team with the New York Giants. In 2001, he was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame and the Clemson Ring of Honor.

Kinard is now a high school coach in Atlanta, GA.

Tim Bourret is Clemson's Sports Information Director and is in his 29th year at Clemson.

BARRY'S dream
To restore our environment

LATEST success
Created the framework for a downtown transformation

Barry Nocks

Professor of City and Regional Planning
Clemson University

Reedy River Falls
Greenville, South Carolina

Barry Nocks reminds students that before anything new can be built, we have to take care of what's already in place. One example of his work, through Clemson University's Restoration Institute (CURI), is the Reedy River Master Plan for Greenville, S.C.

Thanks to the leadership of Nocks and his team of Clemson students and faculty, the river that once fueled the city's now-defunct textile industry today fuels a different kind of economy, with Reedy River Falls Park the centerpiece of a bustling downtown environment.

Storm Cunningham, author of The Restoration Economy, says, "With its mission to advance knowledge in integrative approaches to the restoration of historic, ecological, and urban infrastructure resources, CURI puts Clemson University on the leading edge of this trillion-dollar global economy."

Clemson's Restoration Institute focuses on:

- Historic preservation, healthy communities, advanced materials and urban ecology;
- Creative solutions to problems of the natural and built environment;
- Defining the global "restoration economy"
- Fostering an interdisciplinary public-private partnership

Mission Statement

The Department of Athletics offers nationally prominent athletic programs. Through a dedicated commitment to educational interests, a competitive athletic program, and integrity in all areas, the student-athletes, coaches, and staff strive to bring credit and recognition to Clemson University.

The mission of the Athletic Department is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow, develop, and serve the interests of Clemson University by complementing and enhancing its diversity and quality of life.

Furthermore, the Athletic Department seeks to be a source of pride for the citizens of the State of South Carolina and to be recognized as a nationally prominent program, through consistently high levels of performance and accomplishment in athletic competitions.

The Athletic Department strives to develop student-athletes academically and athletically with the total commitment of aiding their efforts to graduate from Clemson University and advance to careers that will enable them to be productive members of society.

The Athletic Department will act in an ethical and honest manner, dedicated to compliance with all Federal, State, NCAA, Conference, and University rules and regulations.

Important NCAA Terms

Academic Credentials - A prospect should check with his high school guidance office to see if he is taking classes that will meet NCAA eligibility standards. A prospect should do this early - prior to his sophomore year - and keep track of core courses. A prospect will need to take either the ACT or SAT for NCAA certification.

Contact - NCAA rules define a contact as a face-to-face interaction with a prospect and/or his parents off Clemson's campus by a coach. The NCAA sets a contact period for football prospects from late November through the end of January. That is the only time coaches can meet with a prospect away from the Clemson campus.

Core Courses - Courses at a prospect's high school that are considered college preparatory. For the class entering Clemson in 2006 and 2007, 14 core courses are required, including four in English, two in math, two in science, one additional from English, math, or science, two social sciences, and three additional courses. For the class entering Clemson in 2008, 16 core courses are required, including four in English, three in math, two in science, one additional from English, math, or science, two social sciences, and four additional courses. A high school prospect's guidance counselor will have a list of the school's core courses, or you can visit the NCAA Clearinghouse's website at NCAAClearinghouse.net for more information.

Dead Period - Recruiting period when coaches may not have face-to-face contact with prospects on or off campus. Coaches may continue to telephone and write a prospect.

Evaluation - In April and May of a prospect's junior year, coaches will come to a prospect's high school, and review his athletic and academic credentials with his coach. In the fall, they may watch a prospect compete one time, but they will not have any contact.

Home Visit - During the contact period, a senior prospect may invite college coaches to his home to meet his parents, and to talk in detail about the football program and academic offerings at any college the prospect is considering.

Receiving Mail - Prior to September 1 of a prospect's junior year, NCAA rules allow Clemson to mail a questionnaire, NCAA educational information, and a summer-camp brochure to a prospect. After September 1 of the prospect's junior year, coaches can provide a prospect with the following: personalized letters, media guide and copies of newspaper articles, instant messages and text messages. A prospect can receive a football game program when he visits the Clemson University campus.

Recruiting - A term used to describe the process of acquainting a prospect with a college and the coaches of that college, who are striving to learn more about a prospect. Only coaches can recruit - no one else is permitted to persuade a prospect to play sports at a particular college.

Prospect - Any student who has entered the ninth grade. Once a person becomes a prospect, NCAA rules define how college coaches can interact with that prospect.

Standardized Test - A prospect must take the SAT or ACT before enrolling in college full-time. A prospect may take the SAT or ACT more than once and use the best subscore from different tests to achieve the highest score. Both Clemson and the NCAA Clearinghouse require scores to be reported directly from the testing agency. When registering for the test, list the Clearinghouse Code (9999) and Clemson (511 (SAT), 3842 (ACT)). Clemson University admissions requires students to present either an SAT or ACT writing score. The writing score will not be used to determine a prospect's qualifier status.

Telephone - Clemson football coaches can call a prospect once in May of the prospect's junior year. After September 1 of a prospect's senior year, a coach can call a prospect once a week. A prospect can expect unlimited calls during the contact period, before his official visit and once the prospect has signed a National Letter of Intent.

Frequently Asked Questions

- Are a prospect's parents invited for an official visit? Yes. NCAA rules allow a school to provide lodging and meals for parents or legal guardians who accompany their child. However, NCAA rules do not allow schools to provide transportation for parents unless they drive with their son.
- Can a prospect visit Clemson anytime during his high school career? Yes. A prospect can have his high school coach call Tiger coaches to set up an unofficial visit. He can attend a football game and talk with Tiger coaches, and it does not count as a contact when it is on Clemson's campus. There are times a prospect cannot visit - NCAA rules refer to them as "dead periods," and coaches will not schedule to meet with a prospect during that time period.
- Can IPTAY members help recruit me? No. NCAA rules are clear; only Clemson coaches can telephone, contact, and evaluate a prospect. Only college coaches can offer unofficial/official visits.
- Is the prospect's high school coach invited for an official visit? NCAA rules are such that high school coaches may not be provided any expenses for official visits.
- What is a National Letter of Intent (NLI)? It is a contract; a prospect and his parents sign a promise that the prospect will attend a particular college. In return, that college promises a prospect financial aid. A prospect signs it during his senior year (in February for football). Once the prospect signs it, he cannot be recruited by any other institution, and it is a binding contract for the prospect's first year in college at the school that provides the national letter of intent.
- What is an official visit? A prospect can take a total of five official visits (one per institute), which are expense-paid. Before the visit, the prospect must present a high school transcript, proof of an SAT, ACT, PACT, or PSAT test, and be registered with the NCAA Clearinghouse. Official visit invitations are extended by Tiger coaches only. Official visits may not occur prior to the first day of class of the prospect's senior year in high school.
- What is the NCAA Clearinghouse? It is the agency that certifies a prospect's eligibility for NCAA Division I and Division II. A prospect should register with the NCAA Clearinghouse at the end of his junior year in high school. Applications are available in the prospect's guidance office or online at www.NCAAClearinghouse.net. Cost is $50.

WestZone

Clemson Athletics' "New Front Door"

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

Construction of Component I of the WestZone Initiative at Memorial Stadium is ahead of schedule and will be completed for the season opener on September 2 when the Tigers play host to Florida Atlantic. Visually from the field, the area resembled a construction site during the 2005 season, but that will not be the case in 2006.

On opening day this year, Clemson fans will see a completed WestZone Club seating area that will feature over 970 new orange chairback seats, complimented by a common climate-controlled lounge area that will feature specialty food and beverage, television monitors for replays, and other exclusive amenities. The club-level seats are sold out for the 2006 season, and were actually sold out prior to construction.

Fans will also benefit from a concourse walkway that connects the North and South stands. It offers additional restrooms and concession areas, new seating for wheelchair-bound spectators, and other gameday amenities. Additional seats in the "pie" areas to the right and left of the West stands will also be completed. The new scoreboard at the East end of the Stadium, complete with state-of-the-art video replays, is also a feature of Component I, and was operational during the 2005 season.

While fans attending games at Death Valley this season will see these visible enhancements to the stadium, Clemson's student-athletes will enjoy a finished locker room area that is nearly twice the size of the previous locker room area. New wooden lockers, carpeting, and photo montages depicting the Tigers' football heritage are prominently featured in the new locker room. The visiting team's locker room was completed last season as well.

Since the announcement of the WestZone Initiative in 2004, Head Coach Tommy Bowden and his staff have seen a steady improvement in the quality of young men (athletically and academically) who are considering Clemson University. A look to the recruiting rankings of many services is consistent with that feeling.

The WestZone holds over 1,000 fans and has chair-back seats along with other comforts.

"It is not a coincidence that the quality of our recruiting classes has improved dramatically since we began moving dirt and pouring mortar in the West endzone of Memorial Stadium," said Bowden.

"Our fans who follow the program closely see that in the recruiting service rankings, but I see it through personal contact with the quality of young men who are now considering and selecting Clemson. As we continue to build and eventually finish the WestZone Initiative, it will help us reach the championship-quality program we all strive for."

Component II and Component III of the WestZone Initiative will have a further positive effect on Clemson recruiting efforts and the overall quality of the Tiger Athletic Program. Component II will include new offices for the football coaching staff, position-team meeting rooms, a new team meeting room, football administration offices, a player lounge area, an aquatic training facility, a lower concourse entrance area that will include personal plaques of each current Tiger, and a 15,000 square-foot strength training facility.

"The Capital Campaign's original goal was to raise $27 million," said Senior Associate Athletic Director Bill D'Andrea. "To date, we have raised $16.3 million, and I am optimistic we will raise the remaining $10.7 million that will allow us to complete Component II and move our football operations to Memorial Stadium. That is our immediate goal."

Component III will feature a Clemson Museum that will include Clemson's university, military, and athletic history, and a new Lettermen's Lounge.

Based on estimates by an architecture firm and an independent estimator, the cost to complete Component I was predicted to be $30 million when the evaluation took place in 2003. However, due to the construction market climate and the rising costs of materials, Component I cost roughly $40 million when it was completed this summer. Funds for Component I have been raised through private donations,

James Davis on WestZone

"One of the biggest factors I considered when I was looking at schools was the commitment to the football program. The tradition is important, the fan support is important, the coaching staff is important. Facilities are very important and show a commitment you can see every day. Does Clemson want to be a championship program? The WestZone Initiative showed me that it does."

James Davis, 2005 ACC Rookie-of-the-Year

the assistance of IPTAY, existing athletic department funds, and through the issue of state bonds.

Additional funds will be needed to complete Component III, which includes the Clemson Museum and the Lettermen's Area. Former Clemson University President Phil Prince and former Executive Director of IPTAY Joe Turner are the co-chairmen of the WestZone Initiative. The total cost of the three components combined should be approximately $70 million.

"We certainly feel a sense of urgency to complete Component II and Component III," said Athletic Director Dr. Terry Don Phillips. "We have been behind in this area, and we feel the completion of this project will put us ahead when it comes to facilities. But, we are going to make sound decisions from a fiscal standpoint that won't handicap our department and university in the long-term."

The original plans for a new football administration building were developed in 1999 prior to Phillips' appointment as Clemson's athletic director, and called for a separate building constructed near the football practice fields adjacent to the Jervy Athletic Center. Phillips had administered successful projects at other institutions that combined a new football facility with the construction of a club seating area. The WestZone Club will have a positive effect on the cash-flow needed to finance the overall project. Thus, it was a featured aspect of Component I.

The WestZone will bring in revenue to help all of Clemson's athletic programs.

Dr. Phillips is committed to building a model athletic program at Clemson, and he sees seven major areas that need to be addressed in reaching this accomplishment. The WestZone Project addresses five of the seven areas. Specifically, this project will:

- recruit and nurture quality student-athletes;
- attract and retain outstanding coaches and staff;
- give Clemson competitive facilities;
- promote Clemson's school spirit and rich traditions;
- assure sound fiscal accountability.

After the 2003 season, Clemson built a new football locker room in the Jervy Athletic Center and renovated the strength training facility. A new artificial surface practice field was installed and a 53-yard indoor surface was purchased for the Indoor Track Facility for use during inclement weather.

"The renovations we made in 2004 provide our team with a quality environment during the present time, but the new facilities inside the WestZone will be among the best nationally," said Dr. Phillips.

"After meeting with Dr. Phillips on April 25, I have a general understanding of the construction schedule and finances that will be needed to complete the football operations aspect of the WestZone Initiative," said Bowden. "I have the utmost confidence in the people we have leading us in this capital campaign, and know it will be among the best football facilities in the country when it is completed."

The entire 19 sports program will benefit from the WestZone Project, because it will allow Clemson's Olympic sports improved facilities as well. The current football locker room (built in 2004) in the Jervy Athletic Center will be converted into separate locker rooms for Olympic sports. There will be less congestion and less scheduling conflicts in the strength training room at the Jervy Athletic Center. The McFadden Building will give Olympic sports more office space.

"The WestZone Initiative will become the front door to Death Valley and our athletic facilities landscape," said Dr. Phillips. "Facilities aren't the end all, but they are extremely important in the recruiting process. They can put you in position to become successful, both athletically and academically."

In 2006, Clemson signed a football recruiting class that ranked among the top 16 in the nation according to three different services. While there are many factors to consider when a young man is trying to select a university to further his career, it is apparent that facilities are an important aspect.

A new, spacious locker room was added on the ground floor of the WestZone.

One of the country's top heart and vascular teams is right here.

It's one thing to shout "We're number 1!" But we're willing to go on the offense, and stand behind that claim with the statistics. AnMed Health Heart and Vascular Care outperforms all Upstate hospitals in the treatment of heart attacks and open heart surgery.

We're ranked in the top 10% of U.S. hospitals for open heart surgeries and treatment of heart attacks by Medicare. And we've earned five (out of five) stars in stroke care from HealthGrades.

We may not shout as loudly as some, but we've got the quality data, the outcomes and the experts to prove our claim. And we invite you to check it out at www.anmedhealth.org. When it comes to your heart and vascular care, we're in this together.

The ACC's Instant Replay at a Glance:

Objective: To allow for specific types of officiating calls to be immediately reviewed & corrected.

Principles: There must be INDISPUTABLE VIDEO EVIDENCE for any on-the-field call to be changed. In addition, a review must have a direct, competitive effect on the game, such as a change of possession, scoring play, etc.

The ACC will be using instant replay for every game during the 2006 season. In addition, the instant replay system is no longer experimental and has been added to the NCAA rule book ensuring that each conference will follow the same guidelines.

Reviewable Plays:

1. Plays governed by sideline, goal line and end line:
 - a) Scoring plays, including a runner breaking the plane of the goal line.
 - b) Pass complete/incomplete/intercepted at sideline, goal line and end line.
 - c) Runner/receiver in or out of bounds.
 - d) Recovery of loose ball in bounds.
 - e) A loose ball touching a sideline, goal line or an end line.
2. Passing Plays:
 - a) Pass ruled complete/incomplete/intercepted anywhere in the field of play and end zones.
 - b) Touching of a forward pass by an ineligible receiver.
 - c) Touching of a forward pass by a defensive player.
 - d) Quarterback (passer) forward pass or fumble (if ruled incomplete, the play is finalized).
 - e) Illegal forward pass or illegal handing beyond the line of scrimmage.
 - f) Illegal forward pass or illegal handing after change of possession.
 - g) Forward or backward pass thrown from behind the line of scrimmage.
3. Miscellaneous Reviewable Plays:
 - a) Runner ruled to have fumbled (if ruled down, the play is not reviewable).
 - b) Forward progress errors with respect to first down.
 - c) Touching of a kick.
 - d) Number of players on field.
 - e) A scrimmage kicker beyond the line of scrimmage when the ball is kicked.
 - f) Clock adjustments.
 - g) Fourth-down/try fumble plays.

Not Reviewable Plays:

1. Holding.
2. Offside/encroachment.
3. Pass interference.
4. Personal fouls (e.g., late hits).
5. Illegal blocks.
6. Illegal formations.
7. Face mask.
8. Taunting/excessive celebration.
9. False starts.
10. Roughing the passer/kicker.
11. Fighting participants.

Coaches Challenge Added to Instant Replay

- The head coach of either team may request that the game be stopped and a play be reviewed by challenging the on-field ruling.
- A coach initiates this challenge by taking a team timeout before the ball is next put in play and informing the referee that he is challenging the ruling of the previous play. The head coach who has challenged the original ruling is not permitted any other challenge during the game.
 - After a review has been completed, if the on-field ruling is reversed, that team's timeout will not be charged.
 - After a review has been completed, the on-field ruling is not reversed, that team's timeout counts as one of the three permitted that team for that half.
 - A head coach may not challenge a ruling in which the game was stopped and a decision has already been made by the Replay Official.
 - If a head coach requests a team timeout to challenge an on-field ruling and the play being challenged is not reviewable, the timeout shall count as one of the three permitted his team during that half of the game. If all team timeouts have been used, a delay penalty will be assessed.
 - A head coach may not challenge an on-field ruling if all the team's timeouts have been used for that half.

Tiger Strength Training

Clemson Football

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

One of the most important facilities on the Clemson athletic landscape is the strength & conditioning facility. Located in Jervy Athletic Center, it has continued to keep up with one of the most progressive areas in college sports. Director of Strength & Conditioning Joey Batson, who is in his 10th year, makes sure Clemson student-athletes in all sports are ready for competition physically.

In the summer of 2004, he oversaw a third major facility enhancement. When he came to Clemson, the facility covered 11,000 square feet. It has continued to grow and now covers nearly 15,000 square feet. It is one of the most modern all-around facilities in the country.

The following improvements were made:

- State-of-the-art sound system
- Eight flat-screen plasma televisions
- State-of-the-art ventilation system
- New lighting system

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place within the facility. When a Tiger student-athlete enters the etched-glass doors, he is greeted by nearly $700,000 worth state-of-the-art equipment.

The 10 plasma televisions are positioned throughout the facility and are used for training and instruction, as strength coaches film athletes and work with them on their form.

Clemson has a staff of five full-time strength coaches along with four graduate assistant coaches, and numerous student assistant coaches who ensure a Tiger football player receives as much individual attention as possible. Training programs are position specific, and are designed to meet the specific needs of each student-athlete.

Batson is one of the most highly-regarded strength coaches in the country. In his nine years directing the program, he has coached 12 strength All-Americans. He is a major reason Clemson has been to a bowl game in seven of his nine seasons. Also, eight of his former assistant strength coaches at Clemson are now strength training directors at NFL or college programs.

GET THE GOOD STUFF

For years, Clemson has had a great fan base. This spirited group consists of students, alumni, and community members who not only appreciate athletic teams, but all academic colleges and Clemson organizations. Tiger Band considers itself lucky to be among the supported, and often searches for ways to show gratitude to the community in return.

One organization dedicates itself to service and music with hopes of spreading its love to the Clemson community. Kappa Kappa Psi is a national honorary band fraternity that prides itself on service to college and university bands across the United States.

Clemson's chapter, Kappa Beta, began as a colony in November of 1993. After working diligently for almost a year, the colony became an official chapter on October 30, 1994. Members of the fraternity are active students within the band programs who meet academic requirements. The purpose of this organization is to support the Clemson University band program in order to better the quality of musicianship and presence within the campus.

The Kappa Beta chapter has evolved through time into a diverse set of individuals who join together through a love of music and dedication to service. The service fraternity consists of members of varying genders, races, instrumentation, and majors. This student organization is under the sponsorship of a founding father of the chapter, Jerome Jackson, and the chapter also receives great guidance from Clemson University Director of Bands Dr. Mark Spede.

Further, the group elects student leadership annually, and has selected Kim Doney as president for the 2006-07 term. A senior piccolo player in the band, Doney has pride in being a part of this prestigious organization.

"Being Kappa Beta president is a great honor and privilege for me," Doney said. "It not only allows me to serve as a liaison between the bands and our organization, but also to give back to the bands through dedicated service. I am lucky to be a part of such a great fraternity, because our members work so hard and strive to ensure the band has a reliable support system."

The Kappa Beta chapter is responsible for various service activities within the band program. These responsibilities range from maintenance of the rehearsal facilities and practice field, to supplying the band with refreshments for home and away football games.

These young men and women devote their time to caring for the Tiger Band uniforms and supporting symphonic ensembles with receptions following their concerts. The face of this organization is one of deep dedication and is representative of the love for the band program, as well as Clemson University as a whole.

While the chapter goal is service, the students work towards developing brotherhood and fellowship. The brothers enjoy time together during social events like movie nights and formals. Unlike other Greek organizations, this group is offered an unusual amount of time to be together. As a group within a bigger group, Kappa Beta brothers spend a large portion of their time in band classes or in the stands on gameday.

Clemson senior and Kappa Beta brother Kiyana Spaulding sees the band as a way of bringing her closer to her brothers. "Being in the band makes you closer to people, because you already have a common interest," she said. "Being in the brotherhood, you take that love of music to the next level. You get closer to people who want to give back to the band, because they love it just as much as you."

How can you support Kappa Beta and in turn support the Clemson University bands? Tailgaters across the campus have been excited to see trumpets, sousaphones, and other instruments walking towards their tents. Where there is an instrument, there is "Tiger Rag." What many do not realize is that the men and women behind these instruments are members of Kappa Beta. The group is called "Roaming Rag," and its purpose is to provide pleasure to Clemson fans while also raising money for the benefit of the bands.

By donating to this group, Clemson fans help with costs for many aspects of the band program. Allow yourself to get caught up in the Clemson spirit when listening to the famous "Tiger Rag." By supporting Kappa Kappa Psi and Kappa Beta, you support the Clemson University bands. In turn, your support rains on to Clemson University athletics and academics.

Tiger Band Kid's Klub

Families with young children are invited to attend the "Tiger Band Kid's Klub" every Friday prior to Clemson home games from 5:00 PM to 6:00 PM at the band practice field (corner of Perimeter Road and Cherry Road). Enjoy watching Tiger Band prepare its shows for the following day, and each week get a demonstration from a different section of the band.

Tiger Band CD

You can take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group's CD, "We're An American Band." It features more than 30 tracks of favorites from previous seasons. It includes "Sock it to 'Em," "Tiger Rag," the Clemson alma mater, and a special emphasis on patriotic songs. It is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check for $17 payable to CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

In its 12th academic year at Clemson, Kappa Beta serves as a support system for Tiger Band.

2006-07 Season Preview

2006 CLEMSON FOOTBALL

By Tim Bourret

Clemson Head Coach Oliver Purnell hopes history repeats itself in 2007.

Seasons that have ended in "lucky #7" over the last 40 years have been special years at Clemson, and the fourth-year Tiger head coach hopes the trend continues. Over the last 40 years, the seasons that have ended in "7," Clemson has a combined winning percentage of 74.3.

The trend dates to 1967 when Bobby Roberts' team finished 17-8, including a 9-5 record in ACC play, credentials that would have given the team an NCAA bid by today's standards. That team won a school-record seven consecutive ACC games at one point, including wins over Duke, North Carolina, Wake Forest, and N.C. State in an eight-day stretch in February.

The 1976-77 Clemson team, led by Head Coach Bill Foster, finished with a 22-6 record and was ranked in the top 20 in the nation for most of the season. Among the victories was a 20-point win over eventual national finalist North Carolina.

The 1986-87 team recorded a school-record 25 wins against just six losses and had a top-15 final ranking in all three major polls that year. Horace Grant was named ACC Player-of-the-Year, and Cliff Ellis was named ACC Coach-of-the-Year.

The 1996-97 team posted a 23-10 record and reached the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Tournament behind current NBA player Greg Buckner. Rick Barnes had the Tigers 16-1 and a program-best #2 ranking in the AP poll on January 23. The team had five wins over top-25 teams, including one over defending National Champion Kentucky.

Can the 2006-07 Tigers continue the trend? Purnell welcomes back four starters and nine letterwinners from last season's 19-win team that had a 7-9 league record, the most ACC wins for the program since the 1997-98 campaign. It will be a challenge, because Purnell must find returning players to make up for the graduation of 2005-06 seniors Akin Akingbala, Shawan Robinson, and Steve Allen.

"We asked those young men (2006 seniors) to have career years and they delivered," said Purnell, who is serving as president of NABC this season, the first Clemson coach in any sport to serve as national president of a coaching organization.

Replacing Akingbala's 12.1 points and 8.2 rebounds per game will be of tantamount importance. He averaged 13.1 points per game and shot 55 percent in ACC play. He finished the season with five consecutive double-doubles, and averaged 15.5 points and 11 rebounds a game over the last eight contests of the season.

Robinson will be Clemson's only significant loss in the backcourt, but it is substantial when one considers his impact on the Tigers from a shooting standpoint. He averaged a team-best 12.3 points per game and shot an ACC-best 91.3 percent from the foul line, the fourth-best single-season, free-throw percentage in ACC history, and the third-best percentage in the nation in 2005-06. He also finished his career with 203 three-point goals, third-most in school history.

Replacing three seniors who all earned their undergraduate degrees from Clemson on May 12, 2006 will be difficult from a leadership standpoint.

NABC President and Tiger Head Coach Oliver Purnell has guided Clemson to a nine-win improvement over the last two seasons.

"We only have one senior in Vernon Hamilton, but we expect him to be an outstanding leader," Purnell said. "We have some juniors who are also very capable and will step up in this role."

Clemson's slogan for the 2006-07 season is "Reaching Higher." The program has improved its overall win total from 10 to 16 to 19 in Purnell's three seasons, and the nine-win improvement is the best in a two-year period in 20 years. The same goes for the ACC ledger, which has improved by two games each of the last two years.

The Tigers had a perfect 11-0 record with James Mays in the lineup last year, including a championship in the San Juan Shootout, Clemson's first eight-team, regular-season title in 25 years. Mays has returned to the program and will be eligible to play when the season opens in November.

"With James returning to the lineup, we will play the same pressing style we used at the beginning of last year," said Purnell. "We had to go away from that style somewhat when he left the team. He is one of the best I have ever seen at playing at the head of the press, and we will use that ability to our benefit. We will try to spread the floor defensively. Our style won't change much from the beginning of last year. We will strive to put as much pressure as possible on the opponent all over the court."

Hamilton and Hammonds are returning starters in the backcourt. They form one of the most experienced backcourts in the ACC with 122 career starts between them. Both averaged in double-figures last year and hope to enhance those averages in 2006-07. K.C. Rivers is a third backcourt player with starting experience. He averaged 7.1 points per game in playing all 32 games as a freshman.

Returning frontcourt players include Sam Perry, a starter in 22 games who averaged 6.3 points per game. His flair for creating game-changing plays on defense has had a positive impact on the Tigers the last two seasons.

Julius Powell started 11 games as a freshman at the four-position. He had many timely three-point shots throughout the season, especially in road wins at Penn State and Georgia Tech.

Raymond Sykes is a center-forward who replaced Mays at the head of the press in the second half of last season, and has the potential to be an outstanding defender.

Four freshmen will have an impact on the Tigers in 2006-07. Trevor Booker, the South Carolina Gatorade Player-of-the-Year in 2006, is a 6'7" forward from Whitmire, SC, while David Potter is a 6'6" wing player from Severn, MD. A.J. Tyler, a 6'9" native of Palm Harbor, FL, and Karolis Petrunkonis, a 6'11" center from Trakai, Lithuania, will make contributions to the frontcourt as well.

The leader of the backcourt and of the entire team will be Hamilton, a senior point guard. He is the only senior on the squad, but is a player who will relish his role. He made great strides last year when he brought his scoring average from 6.8 points to 12.0 per game. He also improved his game in terms of assist/turnover ratio, three-point shooting, and overall field-goal percentage.

"We need a career year from Vernon," admitted Purnell. "He started out that way last year and faded a bit because of an arm and thumb injury at the end of the year. He has tremendous defensive presence, and there is no reason he can't be one of the best point guards in the ACC this year. We need him to be a team leader. That is what seniors do, and we are sure he will fill that role this year."

Hamilton came into last year with the reputation of an outstanding defensive player who had offensive liabilities. But he made great strides to erase that reputation when he had 31 points against a top-ranked Duke team on 14-19 shooting from the field. The Richmond, VA native was named MVP of the San Juan Shootout when he averaged 13.3 points per game in three Tiger victories. He averaged 12.0 points per game overall, shot 36 percent from three-point land, and was second on the team in assists.

His biggest impact was on defense, where he had a school-record 83 steals for the season. He led the ACC in steals per game, the first Tiger in history to do that, and was named to the ACC's All-Defensive team. He also made some national All-Defensive teams and was 15th in the nation in steals per game. He has already established the Clemson career record for steals with 201.

Joining Hamilton in the backcourt will be returning two-year starter Cliff Hammonds. The Cairo, GA native averaged 10.1 points per game last year, his second consecutive season with a double-figure average. He is the first Tiger to average in double-figures as a freshman and sophomore since Terrell McIntyre did it 10 years ago.

"We will look to Cliff Hammonds and K.C. Rivers to step up and replace the outside firepower we lost with the graduation of Shawan Robinson," stated Purnell. "Cliff struggled early last year, but came on strong at the conclusion of the season. We look for him and K.C. to have a consistent shooting season and give us some scoring from the perimeter."

Hammonds scored 30 points in the two NIT games to improve his scoring average to double-figures for his sophomore season. He has 101 career three-point goals in two seasons, on pace to be among the top five in school history. He finished strong last year when he made at least one three-point goal in each of his last 10 games, and made 18 of his last 38 from three-point land.

Tiger Basketball

A solid ball handler, Hammonds led the Tigers in assists and assist/turnover ratio last year, and was third in the ACC in assist/turnover ratio. Hammonds is an outstanding student-athlete who has a career 3.0 GPA in architecture. He is attempting to become the first Clemson basketball player on scholarship to earn a degree in that academic discipline. An outstanding defender, Hammonds joined Hamilton among the top-10 players in the ACC in steals per game with 56 in his 32 games, and he has 99 career steals in his first two years.

Rivers is a third returning backcourt player with significant experience. As a freshman, he started 12 games, and he is actually considered a returning starter from last year (Robinson started just 11 times). The Charlotte, NC native was fifth on the team in points when he averaged 7.1 points per game, and was third in three-point goals made (44).

In addition to his aforementioned team rankings in scoring and three-point goals, he was also second on the club in free-throw shooting and is first among returning players. Additionally, he was in the top five on the club in assists, assist/turnover ratio, steals, and minutes. Rivers will see time as a shooting guard and small forward.

Potter is one of the rookies who will contribute in the backcourt. Viewed as a similar player in style to Rivers, Potter is a 6'6" wing player. He attended IMG Academy in Florida, and was ranked among the top-25 guards or small forwards in the nation by Scout.com and RivalsHoops.com.

Matt Morris and Jesse Yanutola are a pair of walk-ons who could contribute at the small forward spot. Morris, a 4.0-GPA student, scored 14 points in eight games as a reserve, including nine points in 13 minutes against Puerto Rico-Mayaguez. Yanutola scored three points as a freshman in six games.

"Our lack of experience in the frontcourt is a concern," said Purnell. "But we were in the same situation entering last season. During the preseason a year ago, the media asked me, 'Who is going to replace Sharrod Ford?' Now everyone is asking me, 'Who is going to replace Akin Akingbala?'"

Mays will be the leader among the Tigers' frontcourt players. The 6'9" native of Garner, NC averaged 9.2 points, shot 54 percent from the field, and pulled down 7.6 rebounds per game in 11 contests last year. The leader of the Tigers' fullcourt press who was so important in Clemson's 11-0 start, he had 14 steals and 17 blocked shots in those 11 games. In 43 career games, Mays has 40 blocks and 47 steals, contributing factors to Clemson's top-20 national finishes in blocks and steals over the last two years.

Tiger fans remember his performance in the 19-point win over state-rival South Carolina, the largest margin of defeat for the Gamecocks during their 2006 NIT Championship season. Mays scored a career-high 19 points in a head-to-head meeting with first-round draft pick Renaldo Balkman.

Perry and Mays are nicknamed, "The Energy Brothers," a moniker they were first given as freshmen when Purnell inserted the duo at the same time. The result was usually a change in momentum in Clemson's favor thanks to their energetic play, especially on the defensive end of the court.

Perry missed his partner the last two-thirds of 2005-06, but he still contributed 38 steals, a big part of the 352 by the Tigers, a figure that was a school record and was second-most in the nation on a per-game basis (11.0). Perry started 22 of the 32 games in 2005-06 and scored 6.3 points per game. A slasher offensively, Perry shot 48.5 percent from the field as a sophomore and has a career figure of 48.1.

Powell started 11 games as a freshman, including eight in ACC play. He averaged 5.5 points and 2.7 rebounds as a power forward and small forward. The native of Newton, NC first showed his capabilities in the ACC/Big 10 Challenge when he led the Tigers to a victory at Penn State with 16 points thanks to 4-7 three-point shooting. He also had 16 in the win over Georgia Tech when he made 4-6 three-point shots. For the season, Powell connected on 31 three-pointers, fourth-best on the team.

Sykes is another returning letterman up front. The athletic 6'9" shot-blocker scored 24 points with 25 rebounds in 152 minutes as a freshman. As stated above by Purnell, Sykes got more playing time after Mays left the team. He showed his abilities when given that opportunity, especially defensively, in the Wake Forest win when he had three blocked shots and a steal in 15 minutes.

Three freshmen will contribute in the frontcourt for Purnell's Tigers. They will all be important components as Clemson attempts to improve in the rebounding area, where it had a -3.0 rebound margin in ACC games last year.

Booker is a 6'7", 215-pound forward from Union (SC) High School. He averaged over 22 points and 16 rebounds per game as a senior. He was a first-team all-state pick in high school each of his last two seasons, as he totaled over 1,000 points and 1,000 rebounds in his career.

Petrkonis is a 6'11", 260-pound center

Vernon Hamilton was an All-ACC Defensive selection a year ago after becoming the first Tiger to lead the ACC in steals per game (2.7) from Lithuania who has experience playing in the World Junior Tournament as a member of the Lithuanian team. He averaged 15 points and 15 rebounds at Norfolk Collegiate School in Virginia last season.

Tyler is a 6'9" frontcourt player who could help Clemson in the same role Powell did last year. The 225-pounder from Palm Harbor, FL averaged 23 points and 11 rebounds per game over his last two seasons of high school, and was an all-state selection at the AAAAA level. He shot 78 percent from the foul line as a junior as well.

Travis Price is a walk-on frontcourt player who will have the chance to contribute. He played in six games during the 2004-05 season, scoring a field goal against UAB in the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii.

With nine lettermen returning, including six players who have been starters for significant periods of time over the last two years, Purnell looks at the 2006-07 season with optimism.

"We have many keys for this coming season," said Purnell. "First, we have to stay healthy so we can use a lot of players and implement our press. Second is shooting. We obviously have to improve our free-throw shooting (ACC-worst 61.7 percent last season) and be effective from the outside. Third, we have to rebound well."

A healthy roster with solid shooting numbers could lead to another landmark seventh season in the 21st Century.

Lady Tiger Basketball

2006-07 Season Preview

By Christine Long

Head Coach Cristy McKinney is excited about her second season at the helm of the Clemson women's basketball program. Although the team is small in numbers, she believes that her nine scholarship players are prepared to compete in the challenging ACC as well as against non-conference foes.

Avoiding injuries is always a goal, but it is especially crucial for this year's Lady Tigers, as they return just six letterwinners.

"If we stay healthy, we can be very competitive, both in conference and out of conference," McKinney said. "We learned a lot from last year about how to compete, and some of that is going to carry over and make a difference this year."

With athletic post players and quickness in the backcourt, the 2006-07 team fits well into McKinney's approach to the game.

"Our team is well-suited for my style of play, which is up and down the court with fullcourt, man-to-man defense," she said. "Look for us to push the ball and work it around if we don't have a good shot in transition. We will tend to play man-to-man defense, but we will also show some zone, halfcourt traps, and presses."

With the departure of shooters Julie Talley, Tasha Phillips, and Maxienne White, Clemson lost nearly half of its point production from last season. However, replacing their scoring is an area where McKinney believes that her current corps of perimeter players will not struggle.

"We lost some very good shooters, but we feel very good about the shooters we have coming back in Carrie Whitehurst, Sue Yenser, and Morganne Campbell," McKinney stated. "Tasha Taylor really improved her shooting over the summer as well."

Taylor returns as the lone starter from the 2005-06 season, as she started all 29 games at point guard. The 5'9" Taylor's 5.59 assists per game was third-best in the ACC last season and 18th nationally. The national ranking was the highest in that category for a Clemson women's player in history.

"Tasha's ability to get in the lane helps her create for other people," McKinney continued. "A lot of her assists come from doing that...beating people and creating opportunities for her teammates."

Combining her 162 assists last year with her freshman total, Taylor boasts a 4.38 career assists per game mark that is fourth in school history. However, that number could decline somewhat this season, as she will see more action at shooting guard.

Knowing her role could change this season, Taylor spent the summer improving her shot to become a more well-rounded and versatile player.

"Tasha is shooting the ball extremely well now," said McKinney. "That is probably the biggest improvement she has made since last spring. With her quickness, she is going to be able to get to the hole some, and it just makes her that much harder to defend."

Taylor has also seen her responsibilities change in regards to leadership. As one of just four upperclassmen, she has become more vocal with a take-charge attitude, while also demonstrating a work ethic for her teammates to emulate.

"Tasha has probably been the most dedicated player we've had all summer," McKinney said. "She is trying to step up and be a leader for this team."

Head Coach Cristy McKinney enters her second season at Clemson with high hopes for the Lady Tiger basketball program.

Red-shirt freshman Christy Brown is a point guard who will likely direct the offense this season. Brown sat out last year after undergoing ACL surgery in the summer, but she was healthy enough to begin practicing with the team in the winter.

"The good thing is that Christy was able to practice with us beginning in January of last season," McKinney said. "She knows the system."

Brown, who was also a track standout in high school, brings much-needed intensity to the court and provides McKinney with another quick player in the backcourt.

"There will be times when we have Christy on the floor at the point and Tasha at the two, and that makes us a quick basketball team," said McKinney.

According to McKinney, Brown brings that same enthusiasm to the defensive side of the ball, and can use her speed to take away opportunities for the opposition.

Also likely to see minutes at either guard position is Campbell, a 5'8" freshman. McKinney believes Campbell will develop into a player very similar to Talley in her ability to shoot the basketball.

That would be quite an achievement for Campbell, a rookie from Fairburn, GA. Talley concluded her Clemson career in the top five in school history in four statistical three-point shooting categories. She made 152 three-pointers in her four years, while shooting 37.8 percent behind the arc.

"One of Morganne's strengths is how well she shoots," said McKinney. "Before she leaves Clemson, she will shoot the ball like Julie Talley did on a regular basis. I think that is saying a lot."

Campbell comes to Clemson after lettering four years at Sandy Creek High School, where she guided the Patriots to two (2005,06) AAAA regional titles. She was the Area Player-of-the-Year by Atlanta Journal-Constitution and was named all-state by the Georgia Athletic Coaches Association.

Campbell entered Clemson in the second summer school session and was able to begin workouts with the team in July.

"Morganne is another very good athlete," McKinney commented. "She has quickness, so she can put the ball on the floor as well as shoot it. She has shown us during summer workouts and in the preseason that she is an extremely hard worker."

Along with Taylor and Campbell, McKinney will also depend on Yenser, a sophomore, for point production. The 5'11" Yenser, who was named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll last year, will look to improve upon her freshman scoring average of 5.1 points per game. She displayed her versatility last season, earning playing time (17.5 minutes per game) at the one, two, and three positions.

"Susan's strength is that she can shoot the ball," said McKinney. "She has a good feel for the game and is a very smart player. She is going to be able to use her head as well as her body to become a very good defensive player."

Yenser made 22 three-point field goals in 2005-06, third-most on the team behind Talley and Tasha Phillips. She made a season-high four three-pointers against Wake Forest in Winston-Salem, NC when she led the team in scoring with 16 points. Yenser also led the team in scoring in Clemson's win over Savannah State, recording 19 points on 6-9 shooting and 6-7 from the foul line.

Clemson's final member of the backcourt is highly-touted rookie Lele Hardy. She was named the 2006 AAAA South Carolina State Player-of-the-Year after averaging 21.5 points, 9.5 rebounds, 4.5 assists, and 7.8 steals per game in her senior season. The 5'10" Hardy set Spartanburg High School records for points scored in a single game, season, and career, and McKinney is hoping she will make an equally significant impact at Clemson.

"Lele Hardy is a super-talented young lady," said McKinney. "She has a real feel for the game. She sees the floor as well as anybody I've ever coached, and she passes the basketball as well as anyone I've ever coached."

Hardy is expected to play a lot of minutes for the Lady Tigers this season, because she has the ability to play any of the three perimeter positions.

"She loves the game of basketball and wants to make a difference in this program, and I think that she will," McKinney stated.

Hardy may remind fans of former Lady Tiger Lakeia Stokes. Stokes was also a versatile all-around athlete who finished her career 21st on Clemson's all-time scoring list. She was the first player in school history to lead the team in scoring, rebounding, and assists in the same season when she did so as a senior in 2003-04. That year, Stokes averaged 17.0 points and 7.0 rebounds per game, and was a First-Team All-ACC selection as well as a Kodak District III All-American.

Although the losses in the frontcourt are fewer in number than on the perimeter, the graduation of four-year starter Amanda Frist leaves a considerable void in the paint.

Frist was a fixture in the post for 115 games during her years at Clemson. She is in the top 10 in program history for career starts, rebounds, and blocks, but perhaps a more critical loss is the leadership she provided. A model of reliability on and off the court, Frist was Clemson's first Academic All-

ACC honoree since Kanetra Queen last earned the accolade in 2004.

Junior Adrienne Bradshaw will inherit the starting center role for the 2006-07 season after serving as Frist's understudy the last two years. Bradshaw, who is 6'4", has played in 55 career games and improved her scoring average from 3.2 during her freshman season to 5.6 last year.

"A big focus for Adrienne is catching the ball in traffic," McKinney admitted. "She can be an effective low-post player, but she was inconsistent last year. Now that she is a year older and has another year of experience, we are expecting a solid season from her."

In the offseason, Bradshaw focused on improving her rebounding as well. The Greensboro, NC native understood the team's struggles in that area last season, and has made rebounding a focus for herself and the team.

"Adrienne is one of the people that can really provide us with some quality scoring. However, rebounding is an aspect of her game that she needs to improve upon, and we have seen progress over the summer and in individual workouts this year."

The return of red-shirt sophomore Moreemi Davis will impact Clemson's rebounding drastically according to McKinney. "Moreemi is definitely going to make us better as a rebounding team. The intensity and effort that she plays with is going to add a lot to our team."

Davis, who could play either the four or five positions, sat out last season to develop her game at a higher level.

"We red-shirted Moreemi last year, and we felt that it was a good move," McKinney said. "She gained some confidence and skills, and improved her footwork."

The 6'3" native of Perry, GA averaged 2.8 points and 2.3 rebounds in 9.2 minutes per game in 2004-05, her freshman season. Her best rebounding performance came against Florida State when she pulled down seven boards in just 17 minutes.

While Davis may play power forward at times, McKinney expects that position to be mainly held by senior Carrie Whitehurst and junior D'Leshia Lloyd. Both have primarily played small forward at Clemson, but the team's need for post players has forced them into a new role.

Whitehurst and Lloyd will create matchup problems for the opposition, as they are very mobile four (position) players. They will force opponents away from the basket, because both are a threat from long-range, and McKinney believes they will make the transition to post defenders as well.

The 6'0" Whitehurst is a dangerous shooter, as she has drained 50 career three-pointers while averaging just 12.3 minutes per game. She is the sister of former Tiger quarterback Charlie Whitehurst, who now plays for the San Diego Chargers.

"Carrie is shooting the ball very well, and that is her specialty," remarked McKinney. "She will really spread the defense against bigger fours, and we think we can teach Carrie enough defensively to be effective against the four on the other end of the court as well."

In Lloyd, McKinney has a player with the ability to drive the lane as well as shoot the three. The 6'0" native of Columbia, SC has started 20 games in her career, and has averaged 7.2 points and 3.5

rebounds per game. Of her 140 career field goals, 32 have come from behind the three-point line.

For Lloyd's offseason regimen, the coaches implored her to work on her defensive skills, an assignment with which Lloyd has complied.

"D'Leshia is strong and quick, and jumps very well," McKinney said. "We already see a difference in her defense from last year to this year, and that was an area she needed to improve."

Clemson's only newcomer to the frontcourt will not appear in the boxscores this season, but April Parker's presence in practice will make an immediate contribution to the team. Parker is a 6'2" transfer from Western Carolina, where she averaged 5.2 points and 4.8 rebounds as a freshman last season.

"April has a lot of physical tools and wants to be a good player," commented McKinney. "We are excited that we have a year to work with her and help her develop."

The Lady Tigers open their 2006-07 schedule at home on November 10 against Arkansas, one of three SEC teams they will face this season. Clemson will also play in-state rival South Carolina in Columbia, SC this year before traveling to Nashville, TN to take on a tough Vanderbilt team in a nationally-televised contest on ESPN2.

"The Vanderbilt game is a huge game, especially because it is on ESPN2," McKinney said. "You want to have a good showing on national television."

In addition to South Carolina, the Lady Tigers will face three teams from the state of South Carolina during the non-conference season. College of Charleston, Furman, and Wofford will all make the trip to Littlejohn Coliseum.

Clemson's annual Thanksgiving trip will be to Orono, ME for a tournament that includes Brown and 2006 NCAA Tournament team Saint John's, along with host Maine.

The Lady Tigers will also travel to James Madison, Tennessee Tech, and Duquesne for pre-conference action, while playing host to Chattanooga, Kennesaw State, Dayton, and Charlotte.

Junior Adrienne Bradshaw will anchor the middle at center for Clemson this season.

"We have a good mix of non-conference games that we may have a chance to win and gain some confidence, especially with our freshmen," stated McKinney. "We also have some tough games and games against teams in good conferences."

Clemson's ACC slate will begin on the road against Wake Forest on January 4 before returning home to clash with Georgia Tech on January 11. The Lady Tigers will continue their home-and-home series with Wake Forest, Georgia Tech, and Florida State.

They will also host conference foes Virginia Tech, and Virginia, as well as defending National Champion Maryland and NCAA semifinalist North Carolina. Clemson will play road games against Boston College, Miami, N.C. State, and national runner-up Duke.

"The conference schedule is going to be tough," McKinney admitted. "The ACC is the best conference in the country. You do not get a night off, but we're going to work hard to be ready for that."

Being competitive in every game, ACC and non-conference, is one goal McKinney has set for this year's team, along with continuing to develop and improve on a daily basis.

"I am excited about this year, but even more so, I am excited about the future of Lady Tiger basketball. We see good things happening every day with this program."

Daniel Moskos

Team USA Baseball Trip to Cuba

By Sanford Rogers

The summer of 2006 was not a stellar one in terms of international success for Team USA athletic squads. Both the USA men's and women's basketball squads failed to earn gold medal honors at the World Championships in a sport long-considered almost a given for U.S. victories. The United States Ryder Cup team was blitzed when the Europeans doubled the score on Tiger Woods and company.

Daniel Moskos, entering his junior season at Clemson, was a part of a United States squad that enjoyed tremendous success at the highest level, perhaps the only U.S. squad to gain its sport's top prize. Moskos was a key component for the Team USA baseball squad that earned gold medal honors at the International University Sports Federation World Championship played in Havana, Cuba.

Moskos, a native of Alta Loma, CA, was informed that he would have a chance to compete for the Red, White, and Blue while the Tigers were in Omaha for the 2006 College World Series. It was an opportunity he had hoped would present itself.

"Toward the end of our season last year, I was told I was being considered for Team USA," recalled Moskos. "When they asked if I was interested, I definitely was. There are not many opportunities to play for and represent your country. When I got the invitation to try out, it was a dream come true."

While summer can be a leisurely time for many college students, it was anything but for the lefthanded relief pitcher. Following Clemson's appearance in the College World Series, there was little time for Moskos to reflect on a successful season that saw him notch 10 saves, tied for third-most in school history.

"When the team returned from Omaha, I had just two days to clean out my apartment, pack, and go to Massachusetts for the tryouts," he said. "It was rushed to say the least, but I saw it as an advantage in that my arm was still in shape, and I had been pitching in some very important games for Clemson."

When Moskos joined the USA squad, he found some familiar faces, both on the field and in the dugout. Miami's (FL) Jemile Weeks, North Carolina's Tim Federowicz, N.C. State's Andrew Brackman, and Virginia's Sean Doolittle were all a part of Team USA.

"One of the most enjoyable things about the summer was getting to know and playing with so many great players," he said. "A lot of the guys were people I had competed against at Clemson. To play with them was a very rewarding experience."

There was also a familiar style of coaching in the dugout for Team USA. Vanderbilt's Tim Corbin, who served as Jack Leggett's top assistant at Clemson from 1994-02, served as the manager.

"Coach Corbin was great to play for," said Moskos. "He was almost identical to Coach Leggett in so many ways. I don't think I would have enjoyed the experience as much if it had not been for him."

Corbin, who has guided the Commodores to the SEC Championship game twice in the past three years, had no hesitation in inserting Moskos in key situations.

"Daniel was our go-to guy at the end of the game and was successful 100 percent of the time," remembered Corbin. "There was no question in my mind that the game was over every time I gave him the ball. He had absolutely no fear of the opponent. That attitude permeated to the rest of the team. I knew that he could fill any role on our pitching staff because of his physical tools, but he was a 'bulldog' on the mound at the end of the game."

It would be difficult to argue with Corbin's assessment of Moskos' pitching prowess. He pitched in a team-high 18 games for Team USA during the summer. In 21.0 innings pitched, he allowed just eight hits and two earned runs (0.86 ERA) along with 35 strikeouts against only four walks. He added a team-best six saves as the squad's primary closer.

Prior to making the trip to Havana, Cuba for the World Championships, Team USA played 23 exhibition contests throughout the East Coast against Chinese Taipei, Germany, Korea, and Japan. One of those games against Japan was played at West End Field in Greenville, SC. West End Field, home of the Greenville Drive, turned out to be one of the more memorable places Moskos pitched during the summer. The amount of orange in the stands and "Tiger Rag" on the sound-system made for a night to remember.

"Other than the gold medal game against Chinese Taipei, the game in Greenville was the highlight of the summer," said Moskos. "It was like a homecoming for me. When Coach Corbin brought me in for the ninth inning, the crowd looked like a sea of orange. When I heard 'Tiger Rag' start to play, I could not help but smile. My teammates could not believe all of the Clemson people that came out to support me. They were envious of that support."

Following the exhibition portion of the schedule, Team USA ventured to Havana, where it posted a perfect 7-0 record with victories over Puerto Rico, Czech Republic, Mexico, Chinese Taipei (two wins, including one in the gold medal game), Nicaragua, and Japan. While the victories were important, the opportunity to visit Cuba was an added bonus. Not many Americans have visited the island since Fidel Castro took over the island country in 1959.

Moskos had some apprehension about the trip to the communist country, and left with a greater appreciation of America. "Before we went to Cuba, I did not know what to expect," admitted Moskos. "A part of me was a little scared, but I was also excited about going to a place that not many Americans have had a chance to visit."

"The thing that really amazed me was the lack of real estate for sale and no car dealerships. Every car on the streets was from the 1950s. I was amazed they were still running. As Americans, I don't think we realize how fortunate we are in terms of quality of life."

Following a summer with Team USA, Moskos has settled back into his regular routine of school and fall baseball practice. With the experience he gained this past summer, he is already looking forward to the 2007 season at Clemson.

"We have the potential to be as good or better than we were last year," said Moskos. "The goals we have every year at Clemson are to win the ACC, go to Omaha, and compete for a national championship. I think we have the team that is capable of doing that."

If the Tigers do advance to the College World Series in 2007, Moskos will be an important member of that squad. His time with Team USA this past summer will certainly give him experience that cannot be overlooked.

Daniel Moskos (left) and his teammates were able to visit a country that most Americans never have a chance to see.

Tony Elliott

Former Tiger Wideout & Current S.C. State Assistant Coach

By Philip Sikes

In the sports information industry, one of the real pleasures of the job is nominating worthy student-athletes for academic All-America consideration. In my brief career in the Clemson SID office, I have never had or seen a faculty member write a letter of support for the nominated student-athlete.

However, after looking through the contents of Tony Elliott's archived file, I was taken aback by a letter from Professor D.L. Kimbler to Tim Bourret, Clemson's Sports Information Director. The industrial engineering professor applauded Bourret's nomination of Elliott for academic All-America status.

In the letter, Kimbler reminisced about Elliott's senior project, and marveled at the effort he and his group put together.

"Tony's leadership skills were recognized by his teammates, who chose him as their team leader," Kimbler said in the letter. "In team meetings on Fridays, Tony was always ready to take on more than his part of the project, whether the Saturday game was home or away. I was amazed at his ability to deal with a Saturday game at this level as well as his academic assignments in the same weekend."

Kimbler's words were not only kind, but also right on the money. Elliott, who played wide receiver for the Tigers from 2000-03, was born a leader. After walking on to the Tiger team and making it all the way to team captain as a senior, he left an indelible mark on Clemson football.

Elliott now has the opportunity to further showcase his leadership skills, as he was hired as an assistant coach at S.C. State prior to 2006. The James Island, SC native relishes his new role.

"I love being around the kids every day," said Elliott, who coaches wide receivers at the Division I-AA institution in Orangeburg, SC. "I enjoy having the opportunity to be a role model to them. The best part is being able to teach and to watch them apply what they have learned. I love helping kids maximize their potential, whether it be athletically, academically, or socially."

After his playing career ended, he did not wind up in coaching right away. Elliott went to work for

A team leader as a Tiger, Tony Elliott has taken his leadership skills to the sidelines at S.C. State.

Michelin in Upstate South Carolina, where he put his industrial engineering degree to good use. While at Michelin, he was elected as the coordinator for the company's United Way campaign in Anderson County. As a former student-athlete, he understood the importance of being active in the community.

"Having played football, I realized how important community service is. It certainly makes you humble to see that you are blessed with things that others aren't as fortunate to have."

Elliott knows first-hand how challenging life can be. His story of a tough childhood has been well-documented in various gameday programs and in feature articles written by the different beatwriters.

Through all the personal difficulties, which included the loss of his mother in an automobile accident, he persevered and made it to Clemson as a walk-on in 1999.

After battling through injuries in 2001, Elliott became a key ingredient to Clemson's offense his junior and senior seasons. He was a mainstay in the Tigers' strong receiver corps, which included three players that are on or were on NFL rosters over the last three years.

In 2002, he achieved his most memorable moment by scoring his first career touchdown in a narrow win over Georgia Tech. Elliott was on the receiving end of a 44-yard touchdown pass from current video graduate assistant Willie Simmons.

His leadership skills were never more evident than in 2003, a season that saw its share of ups and downs for the Tigers. Early in the season, he had a touchdown in a 39-3 rout at Georgia Tech, the biggest win for Clemson over the Yellow Jackets in over 100 years. He caught two balls for 58 yards in an overtime win over a ranked Virginia team as well.

However, the team faced major adversity after a 45-17 defeat at the hands of Wake Forest in November. The following week, Elliott and his teammates had the task of playing host to #3 Florida State. With strong leadership, the Tigers went on to defeat the Seminoles 26-10 and won the last four games of the season. This included a Peach Bowl victory over #6 Tennessee.

Elliott spent time as a volunteer coach at Easley High School recently, and it was at that point that he began to think about coaching in a full-time capacity. Tom Evangelista, who was a graduate assistant under Tommy Bowden when Elliott played at Clemson, was an assistant at S.C. State. It is likely that Evangelista put in more than a good word for Elliott to Head Coach Buddy Pough, who thought enough of his abilities to hire him right away. Elliott has made the adjustment, and is now experiencing the daily grind that is coaching football.

"At first it was tough, as any new job is," Elliott explained. "It's always a challenge. But everything is starting to fall into place."

Elliott earned his degree in industrial engineering.

Tigers in Division I Coaching

The list of Clemson alumni currently in the coaching ranks is both long and distinguished. However, two men in particular stand out because they serve as head coaches for Division I football programs.

Rickey Bustle earned three letters as a wide receiver at Clemson from 1974-76, where he caught a pair of touchdowns as a junior in the Tigers' option-oriented attack. He was a graduate assistant coach when Clemson downed Ohio State in the famous 1978 Gator Bowl.

He made a name for himself among the coaching ranks as offensive coordinator under Frank Beamer at Virginia Tech. Among those he mentored in Blacksburg was current Atlanta Falcon quarterback Michael Vick. He helped the Hokies to the National Championship game in 1999 (Sugar Bowl against Florida State). Bustle actually had two stints at Virginia Tech that covered 14 seasons. He helped the school to a 75-21 overall record during his eight years as offensive coordinator.

Bustle is in his fifth year as the head coach at Louisiana-Lafayette. He guided the Ragin' Cajuns to a share of the Sun Belt conference title in 2005.

Bobby Johnson earned three letters as a receiver and defensive back at Clemson from 1970-72, where he led the team in interceptions his final two years. He started all 22 games in 1971 and 1972, and posted seven interceptions during that time.

In 1993, Johnson served as defensive coordinator for Clemson's 8-3 team that went on to a Peach Bowl win over Kentucky. Johnson left prior to the bowl to begin his head coaching career at Furman, where he led the Paladins to an NCAA national runner-up finish and a pair of Southern Conference titles from 1994-01. At Furman, he coached 2000 Walter Payton Award (top player in Division I-AA) winner Louis Ivory. For three seasons, he also coached current Clemson Tight Ends Coach Billy Napier.

Johnson was hired to direct Vanderbilt in 2001 after his tremendous success at Furman. He coached a 2006 first-round draft pick at Vanderbilt in quarterback Jay Cutler. He also led the Commodores to a memorable upset over in-state rival Tennessee in 2005, ending the school's 23-year drought against the Volunteers. Last Saturday, he led the Commodores to an upset victory over #16 Georgia in Athens.

Odds are, it will not take long for Elliott to make a name for himself among the coaching ranks because of his work ethic and dedication to constantly challenging himself. In fact, it would not be surprising to see Coach Pough write his own letter of support for Elliott, just as Kimbler did in December of 2003. Elliott seems to have that type of special touch with everyone he comes in contact.

Philip Sikes is an Assistant Sports Information Director for the Tigers for the past five years at that position at Clemson. He previously worked as a graduate assistant at Clemson for two years.

The Last Word

"Big Games" in Death Valley

By Tim Bourret

There are many definitions for the term "Big Game." A "Big Game" can be one that is looked upon as a key stepping stone on the path to a great season. Clemson's 1981 victory over #4 Georgia, although a September contest, was certainly a big game during the Tigers' drive to the national title 25 seasons ago.

Another definition of a "Big Game" can be derived from a matchup of charismatic All-Americans. The 1984 Clemson-Virginia Tech game had the air of a heavyweight championship fight, because the contest featured All-America linemen William Perry of Clemson and Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech. Clemson won that game 17-10, and Perry and Smith put on a defensive show.

The "Big Game" atmosphere is certainly prevalent when a dynamic coaching matchup exists. We witnessed that at Clemson in 1999 when Bobby Bowden and Florida State faced Tommy Bowden's Tigers in the first father-son coaching confrontation in Division I football history.

But most big games are termed that by the media because of national rankings. I get a kick out of pundits who claim there should not be polls until the end of the season. But these polls actually define the term itself. We would know Clemson has a 6-1 record, while Georgia Tech is 5-1 entering this contest without polls, but would it have the same meaning? Wake Forest was 5-0 entering the game two weeks ago, and it was a big game, but it was not as big from a national standpoint, because Wake Forest was not ranked in the top 25 of either poll.

Here is one fact that will put today's game in perspective. Today's contest between #12 Clemson and #13 Georgia Tech will be the first battle of top-15 teams on Frank Howard Field since 1992, and just the fifth meeting of top-15 teams here since the stadium was constructed in 1942. Now that puts it in perspective.

The 1956 contest with Virginia Tech was a key victory in Clemson's drive to the Orange Bowl at the conclusion of the season. (A victory 50 years later against another Tech could supply the same momentum toward a similar postseason destiny.) Joel Wells led the way that day with 22 rushes for 108 yards and a touchdown.

The 1988 meeting between #3 Clemson and #10 Florida State in Death Valley featured All-Americans Deion Sanders of Florida State and Donnell Woolford of Clemson.

Nineteen years later on November 12, 1977, I saw my first game in Death Valley. As a graduate assistant in the Notre Dame Sports Information Office, I traveled to that game with Joe Montana and the Notre Dame team. The Irish won that day 21-17 behind two fourth-quarter touchdowns by Montana.

That game had every definition needed for a "Big Game." There was the star matchup of quarterbacks in Montana and Clemson quarterback Steve Fuller, who would be named Third-Team AP All-American ahead of Montana the following year. It had the national appeal, with Notre Dame ranked #5 and Clemson #15. And there was the interesting coaching dichotomy of Dan Devine against Charley Pell.

I saw Montana this past summer while he was in Greenville, SC promoting a book he wrote with his wife on high blood pressure. He recalled the intense atmosphere that day, and he remembered it as one of the most memorable road wins of his career. That following spring, he often wore a tee-shirt around the Notre Dame campus that said "Death Valley '77, Beat Notre Dame."

Clemson played in the Gator Bowl at the conclusion of that season, the first bowl appearance for the Tigers in 18 years. Notre Dame went on to win the national title with a 38-10 Cotton Bowl victory over Texas. That game at Clemson was the only tough game for the Irish over the last seven games of the year.

The two teams had a combined 38 players who participated in that game who went on to play in the NFL. Had there been ESPN and GameDay back in 1977, the roadshow surely would have been at Clemson that weekend.

Eleven years later, the only top-10 matchup in the history of Memorial Stadium took place when Bobby Bowden's Seminole team came to Clemson to face Danny Ford's #3 Tigers. Clemson had actually been a preseason #1 team by some publications in the summer of 1988, while Florida State had been within a one-point loss to Miami (FL) of a national title during an 11-1 season the year before.

I talked about a key matchup contributing to a big-game atmosphere, and we saw it this day, as Florida State's secondary was led by first-team All-American Deion Sanders, and Clemson's featured first-team All-American Donnell Woolford. Sanders would add to his legend with a 76-yard punt return for a score, the only punt return for a touchdown against Chris Gardocki in his Tiger career.

It was a rainy day in Death Valley, and Bowden would rain on Clemson's parade by day's end thanks to his then career-defining "puntooskie" play. Clemson was about to gain possession of the ball with two minutes left and in good field position, but Tommy's dad gambled from his own 21 and ran a fake punt with Leroy Butler, who ran 78 yards for a first down to the Clemson one, setting up the winning field goal. Butler was actually the leading rusher in that hard-hitting game thanks to that one play.

The Clemson-Notre Dame meeting at Death Valley in 1977 featured 38 future NFL players, including Joe Montana.

Four years later, it was #15 against #5 again when Florida State came to Clemson for its first-ever ACC contest. Clemson was the defending ACC Champion, and was looked upon as the top challenger to the "new kid on the block" Seminoles, who were in the middle of a 14-year run of top-five national finishes.

It was the first home night game at Clemson since 1956, adding to the "Big Game" atmosphere. Then unknown Florida State quarterback Charlie Ward kept both teams in the game at the same time. Making just his second start, Ward threw four interceptions, including one returned by James Trapp for a 39-yard touchdown, a play that got Trapp drafted, leading to a 10-year NFL career.

But, Ward settled down, and the future Heisman Award winner led Florida State on the winning touchdown drive with less than two minutes left.

Now, here we are 14 years later. Today's contest has had national media interest, one that is short of Bowden Bowl I, but with GameDay on the scene for the first time ever, it certainly has its own special electricity.

The Clemson-Georgia Tech rivalry has been noted for its competitive games in recent years. Has any conference rivalry anywhere in the nation had nine of its last 10 games decided by five points or less, including an incredible string of six consecutive games decided by exactly three points?

This game has star power in future first-round draft picks Calvin Johnson of Georgia Tech, the ACC's top receiver, and Gaines Adams of Clemson, the league's leader in sacks.

Take it from me and my 29 years working at Clemson. It does not get much bigger than this.

Tim Bourret is Clemson's Sports Information Director and is in his 29th year at Clemson.
